The Strategic Air Command headquarters said an Air Force KC-135 Stratotanker with 56 persons aboard crashed during an emergency landing at Wake Island early Tuesday. Eleven were reported dead and 23 injured. Air Force officials said the plane was en route from Anderson Air Force Base at Guam to the United States. A KC-135 is shown, top, in a photo from files. Newsmap, bottom, indicates plane's route. (UPI Telephoto)

Satisfied, the agents proceeded to briefcase back on board the liner.

York atmosphere improves; some violence continues

YORK, Pa. (AP) — Isolated incidents of violence continued to threaten the peace of this south central Pennsylvania city Tuesday, although the situation appeared much improved over the past 24 hours.

Meanwhile, city officials conferred with one another about the advisability of extending for another day a loosely enforced curfew aimed against gangs roaming the streets.

An elderly man remained in serious condition in York hospital as a result of an attack by what police described a small band of Negroes. There were no arrests.

Isidore Greenberg, 79, was struck down near his home Monday night in the gravest of several assaults that have occurred in the aftermath of a racial protest.

In another incident Tuesday morning, Barry Strickler, 14, was slashed with a razor blade by a gang of youths who warned him not to go to school, police reported. The boy suffered only minor cuts.

The trouble began Friday night when gangs of youths attacked fans leaving a high school football game and police used dogs as a means of restoring order. Ten persons were treated at the hospital for injuries, including dog bites.

On Monday more than 100 Negro youths walked out of William Penn High School in protesting use of the dogs. The school remained open, but the Hannah Penn Junior High School, 10 blocks away, was shut down.

Both schools held classes Tuesday, and officials said attendance was normal.

The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association reported receiving a letter from Lou Edwards, principal of Cedar Cliff High School, complaining about the post-game violence.

Cedar Cliff, located in a suburb of Harrisburg, lost the football game to York Penn. 21-16, but has filed an official protest with the Central Penn League regarding a touchdown which was disallowed by game officials.

Theodore Wagner, executive director of the PIAA, said Edwards charged that York failed to provide adequate police protection for game spectators, which, according to the PIAA, is grounds for possible suspension of a school's athletic program.

Wagner said he would take the matter before the PIAA's board of control at its next meeting Oct. 19, but indicated that prior action may be at the district level. York is in PIAA Dist. 3.

Alien influx

OTTAWA (AP) — The total of immigrants received by Canada since World War II has passed three million, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics believes. It said nearly 2.7 million arrived in the 1946-66 period, more than 200,000 came last year, and the intake continues.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harry J. Karafin, former reporter for the Philadelphia Inquirer, denied that he ever took money to suppress news when he testified in his own defense at his blackmail trial Tuesday.

Karafin said he did nothing wrong in working as a public relations and advertising man while with the paper. He said three-quarters of the staff was "moonlighting" just as he was.

He is accused of using his influence as a reporter to extort payments from businessmen. His executive city editor, Morris Litman, first suggested that he go into public relations work on the side, said Karafin. The former reporter said this came after he and Saul Kohler, another member of the Inquirer staff, were denied raises.

Before Karafin took the stand, his attorney, Benjamin Paul, argued for dismissal of the charges on grounds the prosecution had not proved Karafin had violated any laws.

"All the Commonwealth has proved," said Paul, "is that Mr. Karafin was moonlighting. Not one witness has been threatened, so no crime of blackmail is established."

Paul said blackmail must be established by "oral communication or the printed word," and not by innuendo.

Karafin said he did not report his activities to John S. Gillen, Inquirer managing editor, because he felt they did not conflict with his duties at the paper. Karafin then read what he called "a partial list" of Inquirer employees who had outside jobs. There were 12 names on the list.

Speaking of publicist Joseph Ball, who is awaiting trial on the same charges, Karafin said he took Ball "under my wing," when Ball joined the Inquirer as a copyboy. Later, when Ball formed Ball Associates, a public relations firm, Karafin said he continued to help him in the advertising business.

Karafin began his defense by describing his career with the newspaper from the time he started as a copyboy. He said he left to join the Army during World War II and was active in public relations during his military career. He returned to the paper in 1946.

The Commonwealth rested its case Tuesday after testimony by Gillen that he "reluctantly" allowed Karafin to resign after firing him in March, 1967.

Gillen said the paper's personnel director told him: "You have cut the cancer from the Inquirer. You've achieved your purpose. Change the record to show he resigned."

Gillen read the jury a seven-page memorandum, prepared by Karafin, which Gillen termed "a record of betrayal." "This," said Gillen, "is Mr. Karafin's report to me of his outside activities requested by me in late February, 1967, and furnished to me March 2, the day he was fired."

The memo said Karafin's earnings involved "writing, publicity, making up brochures, advertising layouts, writing for house organ publications, radio and TV commercials, management consultant and marketing research analysis."

Karafin's memo went on to say:

"Publicity releases were in each and every instance mailed out on the firm's letterheads and envelopes. In no manner did I permit my name or that of the Inquirer to be used."

"At no time did I ask anyone to publish or get anything published in any periodical, including the Inquirer. At no time did I use or attempt to use any contacts in City Hall or anywhere else, to intercede in any incident or complaint, nor permit my name to be used."

"I never made any referrals of any kind to any attorneys, public relations firms, advertising agencies, or anywhere."

Truancy continues in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, forced into idleness for the second straight day for lack of members in town, is getting ready to make the truancy official with several long recesses for campaigning.

Democratic leaders Tuesday avoided the embarrassment of the day before when a roll call showed only 188 of the 432 members on hand. When the quorum issue was raised Tuesday they simply adjourned the House, 10 minutes after it had met.

The Senate, facing a possible filibuster on the nomination of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to be chief justice, did better, with 67 members on hand Tuesday. The Senate had found itself without a quorum of 51 Friday and took 2½ hours to assemble one on Monday.

House Democratic leaders have decided to make it officially easy for members to get on with their campaigning, with the elections only six weeks off, even if the Fortas nomination and other business drags out the Senate session.

So far as these leaders are concerned, only one major new bill has to be passed at this session—a catchall appropriation bill.

The plan is, if the session drags on, to concentrate legislative business in one or two days a week and take repeated three-day recesses in between.

Either chamber may recess for as long as three days without consulting the other. Longer recesses require the more elaborate procedure of getting approval of a concurrent resolution.

Draft not hurting graduate students

HARRISBURG (AP) — Despite cancellation of most graduate deferments, draft-eligible Pennsylvanians are attending graduate schools this semester, according to the state director of Selective Service.

Brig. Gen. Henry M. Gross, speaking in an interview, also cited extremely low draft calls and greater rates of draft resistance and legal conscientious objection in his assessment of the statewide draft picture.

To make his point about graduate school attendance, Gen. Gross read from a Selective Service publication which said post-graduate enrollment has reached "startling" levels despite claims by educators that graduate student ranks would be depleted by 70 per cent due to the cancellation of graduate deferments.

In keeping with a forecast made in July by Lt. Lewis B. Hershey, national Selective Service director, induction of graduate students has begun, Gen. Gross said, but at a very slow pace due to lower draft calls.

The calls for the past three months have been slightly above those of the pre-Vietnam era. And the state total for November — 595 — is beneath the lowest call in 1964, on the eve of the wartime build-up.

Gen. Gross had no explanation for the reduced calls.

There is no record of how many first-year graduate students have been inducted, he said. Although they are the oldest eligible, and therefore the first to go under the way Selective Service operates, first year graduate students are a minority in the manpower pool. Inductions have been aimed at men in the largest single eligible group — men in the 19 to 21 year age bracket. They include men who completed their undergraduate college education in June.

One new and rising statistic in the Selective Service record books has to do with the number of young men who have refused to be inducted.

Since three years ago when opposition to the Vietnam war mounted, Gen. Gross said, until June 30, 1968, 42 Pennsylvanians refused to take the ceremonial step forward at their local induction center. And since July 1 of this year, another 25 have refused, a jump of more than 50 per cent over the three-year figure.

Even with the sharp increase, Gen. Gross said this number was "ridiculously small compared to the number who don't say anything about it and go and do what needs to be done."

On draft resistance, Gen. Gross made this observation: "There is quite plainly a very thoroughly organized plan to make it hard for the draft."

He said he has received word that anti-draft groups in Philadelphia have distributed literature during pre-induction physical examinations telling men how to avoid the draft. The state Selective Service is investigating these reports, he said.

The number of men classified under the law as conscientious objectors is also rising. A conscientious objector, the Selective Service Act states, is one who "by reason of religious training and belief" is opposed to participation in war in any form.

Among conscientious objectors, 1,100 men in the state are classified I-O, a ranking which permits them to do alternate service in the national interest outside the armed forces. Another 1,365 are I-W, now performing their alternate service, usually in a hospital or mental institution.

Muskie gains labor support in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, Democratic vice presidential candidate, arrived in Pittsburgh Tuesday with visible signs of support from labor.

Muskie was greeted by a crowd of several hundred persons when his plane touched down at Allegheny County airport. Many of them carried signs that read: "Meatcutters for Muskie," "UAW for Muskie," "AFL-CIO for Muskie" and "Steelworkers for Muskie."

The sign-carriers were mostly women, but I. W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers Union, was also on hand. Pupils from South Mifflin High School also greeted the Maine senator. They said they had been let out of school early.

Muskie is in Western Pennsylvania for a 21 hour campaign tour.

Bangor hires new policeman

BANGOR — Bangor Borough Council has voted to hire another fulltime policeman at a starting salary of $5,300.

Council took the action during an adjourned meeting Monday night. The policeman's salary will be raised to $5,500 after serving on the force for a year.

John Goffredo and Sons were awarded a contract to repair S. Third St. and Second Ave., between Seventh and Eighth streets. Goffredo's bid was $10,678.

Council also decided to install two catch basins to relieve surface water.

J. Lawrence Davis, borough solicitor, told council that a state highway department representative will discuss with borough officials a road project at the Salem United Methodist Church, S. Main St.

Davis noted he will ask the representative about repair work on N. First St., from the Municipal building to Pennsylvania Ave.

Council feels that work done on this section is unsatisfactory. That part of the street is a state highway.

A letter from the Blue Ridge Textile Co. signified its responsibility for any damage at the new drainage work project on Center Street.

Complaints from Washington Township Supervisors on the present odor at the Bangor Sewage Disposal plant were presented by William Agnew, their solicitor. Daniel Phillips reported the plant is operating in very good order but possibilities to eliminate any odor will be continued.

Council ordered specifications for a new police car be drawn up and presented for examination at the next meeting before advertising for bids.

Merlin Tucker, president, named Frederick Jones, chairman of the safety committee. He replaces John Metzgar who is at present serving as zoning committee chairman. Metzgar will continue as a member of the safety committee.

Township procedures tightened

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — Several modifications now have been made in the law covering procedure in disposing of real and personal property by the board of township supervisors of Monroe County's 16 second class townships; and Pike County's 11 second class townships and other second class townships throughout the state.

The changes, the result of legislation passed by the 1968 Legislature and now signed into law by the Governor, apply for example to real estate owned by the township which the supervisors plan to sell.

It is stipulated that where the consideration is in excess of $500 the sale is to be made to the highest bidder—but only after advertisement not less than ten days prior to the bid opening date, in a newspaper of "general circulation in the township." Previously the stipulation was merely "one newspaper of the county."

Additionally it was required that the bids be accepted upon condition full payment is made within 60 days. This has now been changed to ten days.

As for surplus personal property with an estimated value of less than $200, this entire new clause has now been inserted in the second class township law:

"The board of township supervisors shall have the authority, by resolution, to adopt a procedure for the sale of surplus personal property of an estimated sale value of less than two hundred dollars and the approval of the board of township supervisors shall not be required for any individual sale that shall be made in conformity to such procedure."

'Sweet' gang is sought

BANGOR — Bangor police are trying to locate some "sweet" vandals.

According to police, vandals have dumped sugar in fuel tanks of four pieces of heavy construction equipment owned by the Rosdor Construction Co., Ardsley, N.Y.

The vandalism occurred sometime between Thursday and Saturday, according to a company spokesman.

The equipment was located along Rt. 191, and is being used in constructing a sewage system in Roseto.

Roseto school invites parents

ROSETO — Parents of Plus X High School, Roseto, have been invited to attend a meeting in the school today at 6:45 p.m.

School officials will outline the school's philosophy and policy and will give parents an opportunity to meet with faculty members.

The Rev. James G. Prior, C. M., principal, will welcome the parents in the school's auditorium.

After brief remarks by Father Prior parents are to follow a simulated schedule of their children's rosters in order to see and hear every teacher of their children. Each class will last fifteen minutes.

At 9:15 p.m. parents may visit with subject teachers, the principal and the vice principal, the Rev. F. Charles McKenna.

Pastor creates English climate in United Methodist Church

NEWFOUNDLAND — The steady stream of visitors coming to the Poconos on the beautiful morning that was Sunday, probably couldn't have imagined that the white-painted United Methodist Churches they were passing held a congregation in the midst of a typical English church service!

At LaAnna, South Sterling and Hemlock Grove, the Rev. David W. Klude conducted morning worship as it would have been conducted if the congregations had been seated at Wesley Hall in Leicester or Market Place Methodist Church in Rugby.

The first difference the worshippers noticed was the absence of candles, the cross, and other glowing symbols so commonplace in America. And the minister was not robed, but was in a business suit with a much higher clerical collar than usual.

In England, there are no church bulletins, no sermon title, no title for the children's address. The choir is not gowned in choir robes. Notices or announcements would not be printed, but would be read by the preacher or a steward from the Notice Book.

The service would begin in the vestry, where a society steward leads the preacher and the other stewards in prayer prior to the beginning of the full service.

Sunday, there were five hymns in which the congregation joined instead of the usual three. One was a children's hymn, preceding the children's sermon, and in England this would be sung by the children, all of whom sit at the front of the church. The congregation then joins in the final verse.

There is no singing of the Gloria Patri nor the Doxology. There is no offertory prayer, and no music during the receiving of the offering.

Volkswagen leaps into the present.

With a fully automatic transmission.

If you bet a friend we never would, we almost didn't.

10 years ago the decision was made. To design a fully automatic transmission. The kind you put in drive and forget.

Our aim was to make things easy, but for us changes aren't easy to make.

Especially in this case. There were certain things we just didn't want to lose. Life horsepower, and our reputation for being economical.

What we've ended up with is a 3-speed automatic transmission that's pure Volkswagen—designed from scratch to get the most out of the VW with the least expenditure of effort.

It has the fewest moving parts. It's the lightest per horsepower output. And it's incredibly sensitive. A model airplane engine is powerful enough to turn it!

So come see how far Volkswagen has come.

The Squareback and Fastback. Both have disk brakes, an electronically controlled fuel injection system, and now, a fully automatic transmission.

If you're interested, it's available as an option on our '69 models.

If you're not interested, we sure went to a lot of trouble for nothing.

South Sterling talker comes from long line

By PEGGY BANCROFT

Record Correspondent

NEWFOUNDLAND — For LeRoy B. Stackhouse, of South Sterling, conservation is a way of life and something in which he has been interested as far back as he can remember.

He was six years old when his grandfather's horse was stolen. He noticed the tracks leading around the barn, and those tracks led eventually to the recovery of the animal.

At the time, he didn't realize that he would become a fourth generation member of the Emilie Perseverance Company for the Detection of Horse Thieves and Other Villains...nor that some day his daughter would become the fifth generation member.

This interesting organization, founded on February 6, 1841, at Centreville, Pa., had as its aim the recovery of stolen horses and the apprehension of villains. Today, the number of stolen horses having decreased considerably, Stackhouse is seldom called upon except for regular meetings. He is treasurer of the organization.

He recalls that in the early days, attendance was of utmost importance, and so officers were required to pay fifty cents if they were not present for roll call and a dollar if they did not attend the meeting at all. Members were fined twelve and one-half cents and twenty-five cents for the same misdemeanors.

The Stackhouse family has always been interested in the out-of-doors, game protection, safety, and other related matters since 1880. It was at his grandfather's home on June 25, 1880, that "a number of gentlemen met by appointment to arrange a system of cooperation for the better enforcement of game laws."

That meeting was the beginning of the Bucks County Game Protectors Association, and a committee was appointed to "secure the services of competent persons as game constables to watch the meadows and low grounds along the river which have become the favorite haunts of the woodcock during the dry season." The group advocated speedy and vigorous persecution of all cases of the infraction of the law.

This is the type of work to which game wardens and deputy wardens are dedicated. And Roy Stackhouse, who, this month, completed 41 years as a game warden, is a prime example of a man with unusual interest in conservation.

Appointed in September, 1927, he served the Southeast Division of the Pennsylvania Game Commission in Bucks County for 39 years, and, upon his retirement from the Pennsylvania Railroad, he was transferred to the Northeast Division and now serves the lower end of Wayne County as a deputy warden.

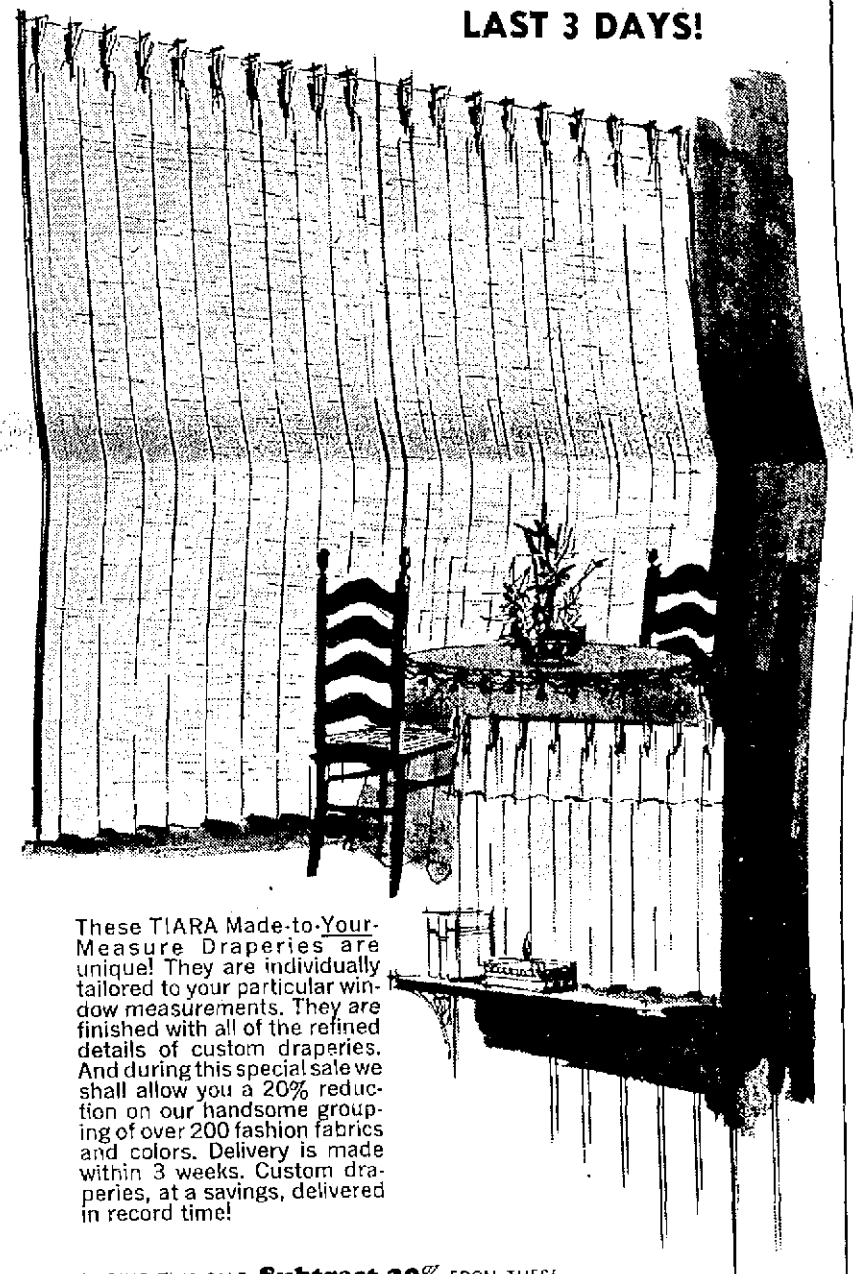

As a boy, he was interested in wildlife, trapping and roaming the woodlands. In the Winter of 1919-1920, he recalls that muskrat pelts brought five dollars apiece, and he made $175 a week with his trapping.

The work of a deputy game protector today has changed considerably from the duties required in the early days. "Today's roughnecks require us to travel in pairs," he says, although he does feel that sportsmanship is increasing and that most hunters are honest and law-abiding citizens interested in conservation.

Debate? Yes — No

Hubert Humphrey, Democratic nominee for the presidency of the United States, is currently seeking a television debate with Richard Nixon, the champion of the Republican cause, who is reportedly running number one in the race that reaches the finish line on Nov. 5.

There are those who say that Humphrey is currently running third behind Nixon and George Wallace. However, we are doubtful of the authenticity of this report.

It is evident that Humphrey is in trouble and as yet isn't showing any signs of getting on course. A successful debate with Nixon could be the turning point of the current campaign for the Democratic standard bearer.

Nixon won't take part in this proposed debate, remembering full well that it was the famed television debate with John F. Kennedy that lost Nixon the presidential race in 1960. We doubt very much that Nixon would go anywhere near a debate with Humphrey, although the latter certainly isn't of the JFK calibre.

But, Nixon faces the Wallace threat even more than Humphrey and has said that he won't take part in any debates in which Wallace is present. It is felt that all three candidates should have equal time and opportunity if a debate of presidential candidates is to be held.

Although Nixon refuses outright to debate with Wallace, it is our opinion that Nixon is the one to be hurt most by Wallace's surprisingly strong showing to date. Nixon may have to meet Wallace head-on if he is to win the election. The GOP candidate may have even more trouble in the south than anyone expects.

If Wallace inflicts as much damage on Nixon as one surmises possible, Humphrey may find his troublesome campaign righted without any special effort on his part or that of his campaign managers.

Nixon faces the perplexing situation of finding that a debate could win the election for him and a debate could also lose the same race.

Lesson for everyone

Our Jewish friends around the world have just completed celebrating Rosh Hashanah — or the Jewish New Year. Religious celebrations for the past three days have welcomed the arrival of the year 5729.

Orthodox and Conservative Jews marked Rosh Hashanah through Tuesday, while the Reformed Jews completed their holiday ceremonies at sundown Monday.

In this modern time of trouble, where demonstrations, violence and war have become a daily occurrence, the Jewish New Year and its worship services have taken on special meaning.

The prophet Isaiah described the high holy days, which end with the Day of Atonement, Yom Kippur, at sundown on Oct. 1, as a time "for man to loose the bonds of wickedness; to share your bread with the hungry, and to let the oppressed go free."

Seldom has this trend of thought been more in vogue with the times than at present. We would all do well to take stock of our actions and our activities.

It is time that we all consider a path of righteousness, a path that will lead us to a better world, a better nation, better neighborhood, better family, better job and to a better individual.

Now is the time for each of us to examine our own being, regardless of our religious beliefs. It is time that each of us tries to the utmost of our strength to find a role in which we can at least aid the cause which would do away with demonstrations, violence and war.

Yes, it is time to loose the bonds of wickedness, time to share our bread and time to allow the oppressed to go free.

Actually, every day is the time to grant these freedoms. But, it takes special celebrations to remind us of this fact.

A Futile Conversation

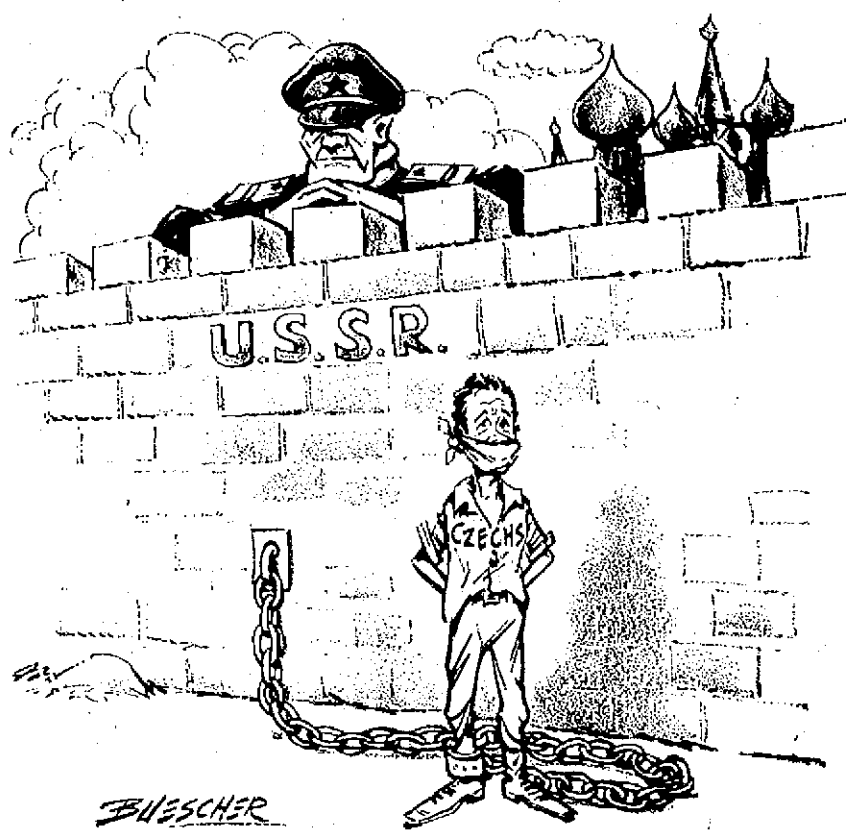

In a random conversation with my gray horse around dusk he showed interest in joining one of the Danbury clubs such as Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions or Exchange. In fact his query took the reverse stance as he asked: "Would I be blackballed?"

I reared back on my haunches at this lack of propriety and replied: "I do not recall of any service club having the chance to blackball horses as they find it hard to pony up the dues."

He said that "pony" was a bad pun. I insisted that "pony" was better than saying "horsing up the dues."

"What are the differences among the clubs?" he asked in his searching manner, which was mostly superficial as I find that the perceptive qualities of a horse are on par with some of my closest friends.

"Well, one difference that isn't is that they are all composed of men whereas a few female members on the Joanne Woodward type would be stabilizing and perhaps add a bit to the intellectual quality."

Tucked into grave

He always tucked his younger brother in bed. It calmed Moshe. It was good for Nick too, because he was always the big and overly polite brother; the one who was so emotional that he often whispered between his teeth while his chest heaved. He felt protective when he placed the blankets around Moshe, and rubbed the little boy's brow.

The Meshulams were Bulgarians. They were also middle-class Jews. Life was sweet for them until the Germans overran Europe. The question for fathers was whether to run and when. Some waited too long. In Bulgaria, the kingdom of Boris was liberated, in time, by hordes of Asiatic Russians who swept the land and reaped the people.

Even when the time came to give up all the materialistic things of life, a good home, a business, a bank balance, Nick still tucked his little brother into bed every night. The Meshulams fled to Palestine. There was sanctuary of a sort to be a Jew among Jews, but, in 1948, the land convulsed with flame and death.

The big-chested Nick enlisted. He fought in Palmach Commandos. Moshe was 15 and one-half years old. He was weak from a double mastoid operation, but he was sure that, if he could no longer play the baby brother, perhaps he could be a man. He too enlisted. When the war of liberation was over, Nick came home. His brother was "missing." Pistols pounded tables and tears streamed down bony cheeks. "He was only a little kid!" Nick shouted.

Missing. Missing from what? Missing from a radar station in the old section of Jerusalem. Nick drew no comfort from riches; the exiled King Simeon of Bulgaria made Nick a director of the select Committee of 100—which helped exiled Bulgarians. Nick was given high honors; medals for a hollow chest.

Missing. Nick travelled to Paris and walked the boulevards. He saw the back of Moshe's head a half block ahead of him. It wasn't Moshe. He saw his face on a bus in London. He saw Moshe at a soccer match in Italy. He saw the pale face in his dreams. "Why do you torture yourself?" his friends said. "I must luck him in bed," Nick said. Then he smiled. "Excuse me, I don't know why I said that."

He knew why. In London, Nick was in a jewelry shop at the Hilton. He studied a case of watches. The jeweler spoke with an accent. Nick smiled. "Both of us have accents," he said. They talked of family and home life. The jeweler had lived in Israel, but he would not go back. He had a brother killed in a radar station in the old section of Jerusalem.

When? May 27th, 1948. The big chest began to breathe deeply. A decade had passed, and Nick was now convinced that Moshe was truly dead. But where? The jeweler said he had a customer, a certain Jordanian colonel, who was—shall we say?—a reasonable Arab. The colonel and the jeweler had many conversations about that war.

Tossed into wells. One day the colonel said that he had led two raids on that radar station — one on the night of May 27th, 1948. They had killed a score or so of Jews, cut the bodies up, and tossed them into nearby wells. It had been a vicious business, in a vicious time. "What well?" Nick Morley begged. "Please — what well?"

No one knew. Nick Morley had position and money. His fellow commando, Moshe Raske, was now minister of Labor in Israel. Nick began to write, to wire, to plead — "find my kid brother!" The government moved slowly. Old records were searched. Nineteen soldiers died, that night. "It is not going to be easy. There are many wells..."

Weeks turned into months. The six-day war the option to five wells. "My brother," said Nick, "can be identified. Part of his skull behind both ears is missing."

Israel dug the stone-filled wells. Nothing. Arabs pointed to a brick-up well on the radar station itself. Volunteers dug 30 feet. Seven skeletons were found. Time blended the bones. Scientists tried to piece them together. With strontium 90, they found that one skeleton could not have been more than 16 years old. Bits of skull were missing.

Nick went back to Israel. Recently he stood on Mount Herzl. In the Grave of Brothers, he tucked little Moshe in. Then he went home.

Newest of polls

WASHINGTON — Hold everything. I've changed my mind. I'm now ready to admit that George Gallup, Lou Harris and their ilk can poll a tiny smattering of about 2,000 people and correctly tell what the other 200 million of us are thinking.

Sure, they can, and not only that, they can predict how 74 million of us are likely to vote next November! Yes, I'm the same man who once implied that in order to believe something like that you had to be either nutty or drunk.

However, I assure you I'm not yet avoiding the men with the nets and, at the moment, I'm as sober as a choir boy during Bible Week. It's just that I've changed my mind because now I have an angle of my own.

Let me try it on you: First of all, when Gallup and/or his colleagues sample some 2,000 persons in an effort to get a reading on 200 million, what they're doing is posing a question to one out of every 100,000 people! (Do you know anyone who is qualified to speak for you and 99,999 of your friends? No? Well, somebody IS!)

Entire Nation O.K., so the people they poll represent .00001 per cent of the population. And with the result of this sampling, the pollsters project figures for the entire country. (If you're interested, 2,000 represents about .00004 percent of the voting population.)

Since apparently I'm one of the few men in America who thinks a sampling that small has no real value, I now ask all the newspaper pundits and broadcasters — and Harris and Gallup, too — to accept my poll. It will use even more impressive percentages than they do.

For instance, two people represent .001 percent of the people Gallup polls. Already my poll should be more accurate than his. (His poll: .00001 of the population; my poll: .001 of the people in his poll. I'm taking a sampling 100 times larger than his, percentage-wise.)

Therefore, and I hope you've been following this closely, all I need is for any two of Gallup's 2,000 people to call me and tell me what their views are on the current question. I should then be able to predict what the next Gallup poll will project!

All I need are two Gallup volunteers. (Your names will be kept secret.) Then the MacLean Poll will be the fastest, most authoritative in the world.

The Democrats supposedly are uniling behind Hubert. Maybe they're just seeking cover.

Congress wants to stop federal aid to students who riot. Man, I'll bet that causes a riot.

Second prize will go to the station which rumored the most reports.

Chet Huntley should have his own show: "Meat the Press."

Allen - Goldsmith Report

Headed for trouble

WASHINGTON — James E. Webb was headed for an unpleasant and potentially embarrassing confrontation with the Senate Space Committee when he abruptly resigned last week as head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Four days previously he had been told by Chairman Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., that he would be called on the committee carpet soon to justify NASA's operating plans. For Webb, already fretting over his pared-down $3.85 billion budget, it was apparently the last straw.

Webb quickly requested, and was granted, an appointment with President Johnson. They met last Monday in what insiders say was an attempt by Webb to have Johnson intercede with Anderson. Anderson and the president are old friends, and Johnson is a former chairman of the senate space committee.

In their White House meeting, however, the president showed no disposition to intervene on Webb's behalf. In the animated discussion the fast-talking Webb submitted his resignation and it was accepted. At a news conference later, Webb said he was not satisfied with the pace of the United States space program at a time when it is clearly running second to Russia's.

In his letter to Webb, which he has declined to disclose, Anderson is said to have advised the civilian space boss that he would be recalled for space committee questioning as soon as the NASA budget got final congressional approval.

Committee not satisfied Anderson stated brusquely that his committee was not satisfied, in at least two respects, with Webb's proposed operating plan for the current year. The principal points at issue were NERVA, the nuclear powered rocket program, and NASA's administrative outlays proposed for this year.

Nuclear rocket propulsion has been nursed along by Anderson for 10 years. Before there was any United States space program, Anderson, then chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, was authorizing visionary research on nuclear-powered space flight. He reportedly told Webb that the $32.5 million planned this year was not enough for NERVA, which had been budgeted for $60 million.

Anderson is reported to have questioned Webb's proposed re-allocation of certain operating funds into NASA's administrative echelons. He is said to have asked why costs for administering the $3.85 billion-a-year space program have not been materially reduced from the costs of a $5 billion program, and why NASA's payrolls have not declined as previously projected.

Pact for peace

WASHINGTON — The weight of evidence and the weight of argument are on the side of the senate promptly ratifying the treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons.

Every nation, including Czechoslovakia, would benefit.

No nation would be handicapped. It is a boon to the peace and stability of the world. It is not the vestibule to Utopia, but it is a significant and valuable step.

There is little opposition to the treaty either in the senate or in the country. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee recommended it 13-3. Both Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon approve it, and the only difference between them is that Nixon consents delay because of the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia.

There would be no case for holding up the treaty if there were any solid evidence that delaying it would help the Czechoslovakian government in any way or to any degree deter the heavy hand of the Kremlin invader or if it were needed to show our revulsion at what the Soviets are doing to the Czech people.

Strong reasons There is no such evidence and the positive reasons for ratifying the treaty without delay are strong:

1—The treaty pledges three things—that nations possessing nuclear weapons will keep them to themselves, that non-nuclear nations will not accept or produce such weapons, that non-nuclear countries will get help under safeguards to develop nuclear energy solely for peaceful purposes.

The potential spread of nuclear weapons is a peril to the nuclear nations and to the whole world. To reduce this peril is a boon to the whole world, including Czechoslovakia.

2—Most of the nations of the world—Red China and France excepted—deeply desire that Webb was caught in a tightening budget squeeze. Congress gave him nearly six billion dollars for the non-military space program as recently as 1966, but the outlay has been dwindling ever since, and Congress, despite Webb's best persuasive efforts, has shied away from establishing major space goals beyond the manned moon landing still hopefully planned for next year.

It is a bit of irony, however, that Webb should have his final run-in with the chairman of the Senate Space Committee. Things were different back in 1961 when Webb assumed command of the fledgling U.S. space effort.

At that time the Senate chairman was the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla. Webb, while he had been former President Truman's budget director and had held other government jobs, stepped into the space agency from a job with Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc. Sen. Kerr's oil firm.

McNamara again After a short lapse, members of the House are happily throwing darts again at a favorite old target, former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, who is now president of the World Bank.

McNamara and the bank are under fire for a $5.3 million loan designed to help in the development of Ecuador's fishing industry. United States representatives supported the granting of the loan, which will surely be a great help in improving Ecuador's tuna fleet.

The trouble is that Ecuador claims territorial fishing rights stretching 200 miles seaward from its coasts. The Ecuadorian navy has seized half a dozen ships within those "coastal waters" this year, including four United States tuna boats boarded 20 miles at sea last month and held for payment of $200,000 in fines.

Noting that President Johnson recently signed a bill aimed at withholding U.S. assistance from nations which take such action, Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Cal., complained about the World Bank loan in a recent House speech. He said the State Department obviously supported the transaction by which Ecuador got help from the internationally operated World Bank.

Rep. Thomas R. Pelly, R-Wash., also criticized McNamara for the loan. He said the claim for a 200 mile territorial limit is "outrageous" and called the seizure of U.S. vessels "an act of piracy." Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Ia., a veteran McNamara gadfly, also joined in the criticism.

this treaty be brought into being just as soon as possible. For the United States to be the nation that blocks ratification—not because we oppose it but because we want to use delay for diplomatic purposes—would be unwise and imprudent. Without benefiting Czechoslovakia one bit, it would cast the United States in the unwanted role of spoiler and for no good reason.

3—There are a few countries—such as West Germany, Italy, Brazil, India, Japan—which have expressed doubts about some provisions in the treaty. They are concerned that they may be handicapped in the development of nuclear power for industrial and other peaceful purposes. If the United States delays its ratification, it could encourage others to delay theirs, and the end of that road could be the loss of the treaty itself.

4—For the U.S. to apply brakes to the non-proliferation treaty would be an empty psychological gesture with respect to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and a body blow to the real hopes of the world.

Let's not try to help Czechoslovakia with this hollow gesture which can only have the effect of punishing the rest of the world.

The vital lesson to draw from this latest Soviet aggression is that the United States now ought to realize beyond any wishful doubts that it cannot safely make any agreement with the Kremlin which rests only on the Kremlin's word that it will honor it.

Under the charter of the United Nations, the Soviets are pledged to respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Czechoslovakia. They didn't.

Any treaty with the Soviet Union, especially involving arms control and security, should now be seen more clearly than ever as a peril unless its execution can be effectively enforced step by step.

Syphilis vaccine

Monkeys may yet give us the greatest gift of health. A chimpanzee seems to have acquired a most unusual disease called pinta. This strange condition, sometimes called spotted sickness, Anzul and carate, is caused by a germ closely related to the one that causes syphilis in humans.

It seems that the chimpanzee who is being studied by a team of doctors in the United States Public Health Service developed pinta in Latin America, having been infected by the germ treponema carateum. This germ is closely related to the treponema pallidum which causes syphilis in the human.

It is now believed that if a human is infected with pinta, he may develop immunity to syphilis. Dr. William J. Brown and his colleagues believe that there is a possibility that this new finding may be the beginning of the long awaited hope for a vaccine against syphilis.

Syphilis is and has always been one of the great scourges of mankind. There have been long periods where this disease has been kept to a minimum by intensive health campaigns by public educators and health officials.

With the advent of the discovery of penicillin, it was hoped that this was the answer to one of the great threats to man's health. In a measure, it was and still is an effective weapon against this disease.

Unfortunately, carelessness and sex promiscuity have reached such a high peak that, at the present time, venereal disease is almost in epidemic form all over the world. The hopeful possibility that a protective vaccine against syphilis is on the horizon is indeed of great significance.

Dr. Charles L. Fox, of Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons, has, with his colleagues, created a new drug which seems to have great advantage over those previously in use. Dr. Fox has taken two standard drugs, silver nitrate and one of the sulfa compounds, and combined them so that now the advantages of both become evident in fighting infection after burns.

Family Fare

No school Friday: could be interesting

By PAT MCCAIN WILLIAMS

By now all the mothers in Monroe County know that Friday will be Teacher In-Service Day, as listed in the Woman's Club Clearing house Calendar, and all the schools will be closed.

This not-so-new news has precipitated a run on coloring books, knitting sets and other items to occupy the smaller set; weather reports are listened to, with avid interest (if it rains, they'll all be in the house!) and a television survey would disclose that peak viewing hours are achieved by the little ones, on Thursday night.

Of course, for the high school set, week-end curfew hours will be observed Thursday night since everyone can sleep late the next morning...everyone that is, but the teachers.

Then again, if the weather holds as it did over the week-end, there are all sorts of year-end activities that can be crammed into a three day week-end...a farewell to Summer '68 picnic with charcoal broiled meats sending a savory aroma into the autumn air; a last lawn-mowing to add the smell of cut-grass and that haunting odor of fallen leaves to add a note of finality to the perfume of autumn.

Somehow any old Saturday can't have the atmosphere of fun that a day off gives children who know they ought to be in school, but legally don't have to be because of In-Service. That extra day off becomes something really special; possibly a reminder of a summer that turned out to be all too short anyway.

Mothers will not have trouble filling the day, although filling hungry children can pose a problem since they spend their time at home eating one meal which begins when their eyes open, and does not conclude until the last crackers have turned to crumbs in bed, at night.

A survival kit for mothers on Friday ought to include cans of soup, peanut butter and jelly, extra milk, band aids, tissues, and the whole works stuck together with mounds of patience.

Maybe Friday would be the perfect day to fill out the winter school wardrobe? Or, to can the last tomatoes? Or, throw the calendar out of joint, don hiking clothes and swish through some of the leaves?

Since Sunday was the first day of autumn, maybe Friday ought to be used as time out before things really get rolling at top speed. One thing is certain: Friday will not be called off due to lack of interest.

Auxiliary rummage sale dates set

The Delaware Water Gap Fire Co. Auxiliary met for the September meeting at the home of Mrs. Mabel Lightner when plans were completed for the Rummage Sale to be held on October 3 and 4 at 314 Main St., Stroudsburg between the hours of 9 to 5. Mrs. Lightner is chairman, and she stated that all rummage for the sale can be left at her home.

A square dance will be held at the American Legion Home, East Stroudsburg on Nov. 15, with the Shawnee Ramblers providing the music. Tickets will be on sale after October 1. All members will have tickets.

Plans are to be presented at the next meeting for the Annual Christmas Party which will be held Dec. 7 or 14. Mrs. Joan Kaiser and Mrs. Roziland Miller will give the details at the October meeting. The next meeting will be held on October 1, either at Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crosdale's Manor House or the home of Mrs. Joan Kaiser.

Sugar Cookies

2 cups unsifted regular flour, stir to aerate before measuring
1 cup sugar
1½ sticks (¾ pound) butter or margarine
1 large egg
1 tablespoon milk
1½ teaspoons vanilla
In a large mixing bowl thoroughly stir together the flour and sugar; add butter and work it in with a pastry blender. In a small bowl slightly beat together the egg, milk and vanilla, add to flour mixture; mix well. Chill if necessary. Using level tablespoons of the mixture, shape into balls. Place several inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets; flatten with the flat bottom of a wide glass covered with a piece of damp sheeting. Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until lightly browned around edges—6 to 8 minutes. With wide spatula remove to wire racks to cool. Store in tightly covered container. Makes about 4 dozen.

Surprise party by Rebekahs

NEWFOUNDLAND — "It was so beautiful and unexpected," said Mrs. Agnes (Waltz) Karlunas, of the surprise shower-reception held for her at the Rebekah Hall.

When the Rebekahs, whom Mrs. Karlunas has served as noble grand in the past, completed their semi-monthly session at the hall, they all went downstairs for refreshments.

Mrs. Karlunas, struggling with her well-filled briefcase on the stairway, burst into the room without knowing that a beautifully-decorated table would be loaded with refreshments, a sparkling money tree, and a pile of gifts and cards for her.

The center piece was a big, red heart with cardinals and red roses, and the heart shared honors with a two-tiered wedding cake also decorated with red roses. The money tree was a live blue spruce with gifts tied with silver and white ribbons.

There were 36 guests in addition to the guest of honor, who cut the wedding cake and expressed her appreciation of the unexpected event.

Mrs. Karlunas before her marriage recently was Miss Agnes Waltz, who retired several years ago as third grade teacher at the Newfoundland Elementary School. Her bridegroom is Michael Karlunas, formerly of Scranton.

Mrs. Randall hostess for card club

PORTLAND — The Afternoon Card Club was entertained on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. Randall Carpenter. Bridge was played and prizes awarded to Mrs. Harry Morgan and Mrs. Ray Transue.

Mrs. Charles Hower will entertain the club at her home in Stateford on Thursday afternoon.

Charles Carpenter Staiger, grandson of Mrs. E. Randall Carpenter of Portland and son of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Staiger, Newark, Del. has entered the university of Louisville, Louisville, Ky., as a Freshman. He plans to major in political science.

Ann Landers

All about raccoons

Dear Ann Landers: This is a serious letter and I hope you will not toss it aside in the belief that I am putting you on.

A few days ago some neighbors came for supper and we had a discussion about animals. They asked me if I knew how raccoons breed. I said, "I've never given it any thought, but I suppose they breed like other animals."

"You are wrong," I was told. "They breed through the nose." I said it was the first time I had ever heard of such a thing, and asked if the mama raccoon carried her child in her sinus cavity - making a joke of it. Both the woman and her husband were so persuasive, I confess I am half sold.

Today I went to the library and learned a lot about raccoons, but I could find nothing about their breeding habits. I've telephoned several friends and they all howled with laughter - but nobody could say for sure they knew. Please educate me, if I need it - or my neighbors, if they do.

S.R.C.

Dear S.R.C. Raccoons are mammals. They breed just like other mammals. That old canard about raccoons breeding through the nose has been around for ages. Apparently a lot of people believe it, but no raccoon does.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son, Paul, learned to speak later than most children. He stuttered a great deal at first and his father became very impatient with him. My husband kept telling him to "shut up" if he couldn't talk properly. When Paul was seven years of age he refused to speak in his father's presence.

The boy is 14 now, an excellent student, a fine musician, but shy and introverted. He speaks to his father only when it is absolutely necessary, and while he no longer stutters, his voice has a slight tremor. We have two younger children (girls) who get along well with their dad - in fact better with him than with me.

The problem: I feel it would be good for Paul to go to a boarding school. Paul would like to go. His father says it's nonsense to spend the money ($5500 a year) and he refuses to pay for it. I have a small inheritance and can send Paul on my own. Should I - at the risk of angering my husband? I've decided to do as you say.

SWAMPSCOTT

Dear S. If the boy wants to go to boarding school and you can send him, do so. If your husband is angry, so what's new? Sounds as if he's been angry at one thing or another for quite some time. I predict the separation will do both Paul and his father good.

Dear Ann Landers: How old does a girl have to be before her mother lets her shave her legs? I hope you won't think this is a silly question. It is a big problem to me. Please answer and settle a fight.

GORILLA GIRL

Dear Girl: There is no particular age at which a girl should be allowed to shave her legs. The determining factor should be how her legs look and how she feels about them. Unsightly hair can be an embarrassment. By the time a girl is 15 she should be allowed to give her legs a clean, smooth look if she wants to. In some cases it can be even earlier.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism - Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Pocono Record, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Erma Bombeck

Instant replay

(This is the eighth in a 10-part series excerpted from the book "At Wit's End," by Erma Bombeck.)

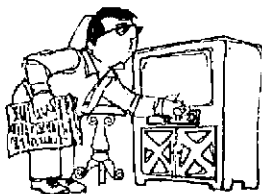

The news that the networks are telecasting a record number of football games again this season is being met with some violent reactions from housewives across the country.

A few women in the Peaceful Acres development in Connecticut smashed television screens with broom handles. A group of California housewives focused national attention on the problem with their "Psychiatric Drive-Ins" open 24 hours a day during the football season. The most notable effort was a group from Virginia who heaved a football through Lady Bird Johnson's window with a terse message, "Would you want your daughter to spend a weekend with one?"

I talked briefly with a group of Ohio women. "It isn't the several hundred games we object to," said one of them. "This is only the beginning. Add to that the state and the local games and you've got 10 or 12 football games being aired each day of the weekend. Roughly this amounts to one husband propped up in a chair like a dead sponge surrounded by bottle caps."

A small blonde said, "My husband sits down at 8 p.m. on Friday and never takes his eyes off the screen. I say to him, 'You want eat now, Ed?' and he just sits there. I said to him the other night, 'The woman is here to buy the kids, Ed' and he didn't move a muscle. I finally took his pulse. It was weird."

"I know what you mean, honey," said a small brunelle.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By B. Jay Becker

North dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

Seres, would bid six or seven.

The first twelve hands seen by the spectators had resulted in a dead tie, each team having scored 12 international match points, and, obviously, Board No. 13 was about to produce a breakthrough for the Australians.

Smilde and Seres did not disappoint their many followers. They arrived at seven spades after a complicated auction that included a forcing club bid, an affirmative response, an asking bid (four hearts), and a series of Blackwood bids inquiring about aces, kings and queens.

The bidding went:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

4 ♠ 4 ♠

Opening lead — five of hearts.

Board No. 13 in the 31st-round match between Italy and Australia was a lull. When Pabis Tucci and D'Alelio held the North-South cards for Italy at the first table, they reached four spades on the bidding shown.

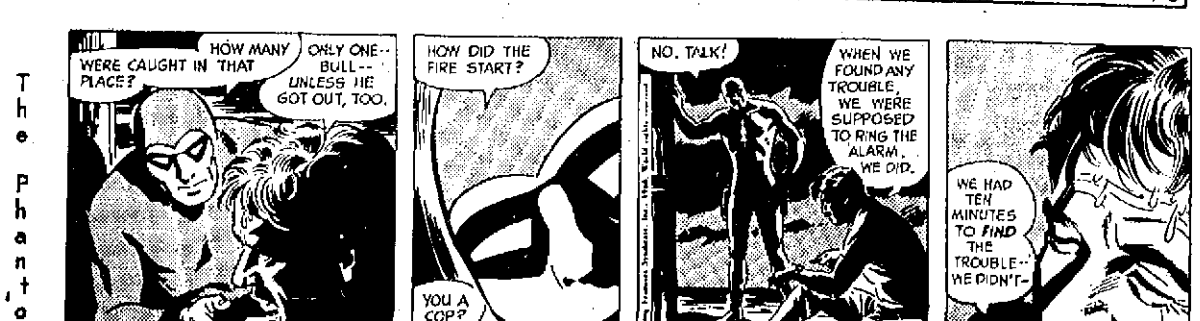

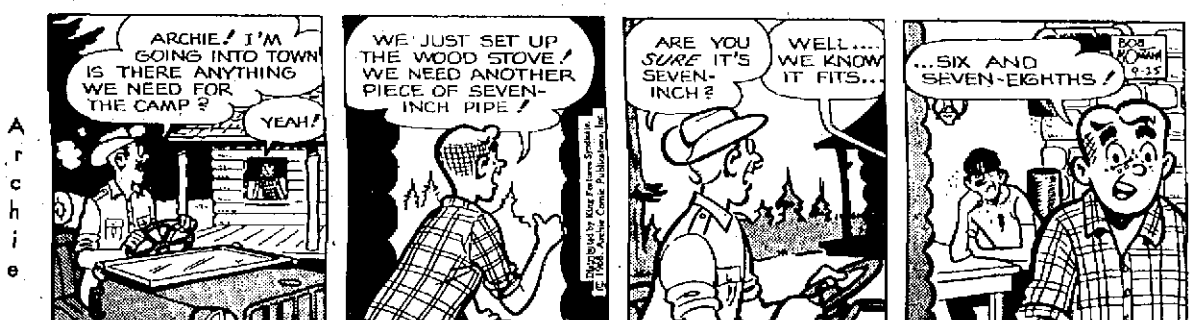

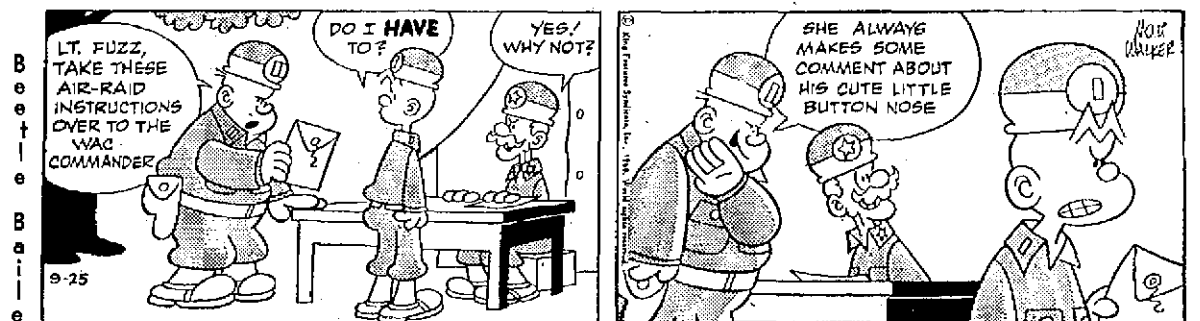

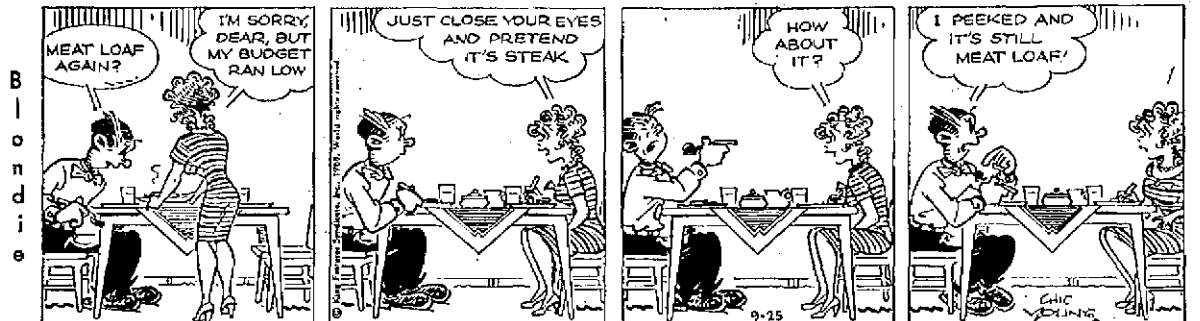

It was only after West led a heart and dummy came down that D'Alelio, to his horror, discovered the ace of spades among his possessions and realized he had been bidding throughout with a twelve-card hand.

D'Alelio made seven, and the only question before the Bridge-O-Rama audience which witnessed the replay of the hand, was whether the Australian North-South pair, Smilde and Seres had no trouble making the grand slam, and Australia moved into the lead, 29 to 12, as a result of the 1,500-point pickup.

The Aussies went on to beat their famous opponents 49 to 28 for an 18-2 victory point score, giving them an outside chance to finish among the top four teams.

In the end, the Australians finished fifth, but they had the great satisfaction of defeating every top team in the event except the U.S., and even in that match they were ahead going into the last board.

Hospital personnel stay out

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Forty-five psychiatric aides at Haverford State Hospital who had asked for a pay raise more than a week ago did not report for work Tuesday.

Dr. Jack B. Kremons, superintendent of the mental hospital which has 600 patients, said the hospital can manage on a temporary basis. "However," he added, "we can't furnish proper care under this situation."

Kremons said he has informed the Office of Mental Health in Harrisburg of the hospital's plight. He must wait for their instructions before he can formulate plans for the future, he said.

Thirty-two aides reported sick, said Kremons. The others did not call. Eighty aides were scheduled to work the 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. shift. In all, there are 198 psychiatrists on three shifts at the hospital.

Kremons said the raises must be approved by the governor's office. The aides had submitted a petition to the governor and the state secretary of health and welfare seeking pay increases ranging from $275 a year for trainees to $1,449 yearly for experienced aides.

"It would be extremely difficult to manage if this kept up," Kremons said. Some off-duty nurses were called in to help Tuesday, he said.

THE SHORT OF IT: (Q.) I like a boy who is five feet one inch tall. My mother says he's too short.

I don't mind his height. But he gets mad when I try to be friendly with foreigners. I belong to Friendship International and believe that being friends with people from all over the world is very rewarding.

What would you do about a boy like this?—A. of Springfield, Mass.

(A.) His lack of physical stature is not reason enough to quit him. A boy or a man can be small in body and big of heart.

But not your friend, apparently. His wanting to limit your friendships is too much littleness. Find somebody who isn't saved off in both body and mind. Good luck!

CROAK: (Q.) When I quit this boy to go with another guy, he and his brother started calling me frog. They found out fast I hated the nickname, but they kept it up.

Now school has started again, and they have about 10 people calling me Frog. Help!

State justice acquits courts of causing lawlessness in U.S.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Pennsylvania Supreme Court justice has acquitted the nation's courts of any blame for America's prevailing lawlessness.

"There has not been a shred of concrete evidence—not one solitary shred—tracing the current lawlessness in America to the decisions of our courts," Justice Samuel J. Roberts said in an interview.

He said he was speaking in particular in defense of the U.S. Supreme Court, which has been blamed as "some sort of criminal catalyst."

"If there be criminal conduct, then look for its roots in poverty, in a lack of moral and scholastic education," the justice said.

"Trace it to life in the big city ghetto, not to the chambers of the big city judge."

Justice Roberts said the judicial system for centuries has thrived on honest, responsible and informed criticism of courts and decisions by judges, lawyers and the public.

Judges not free to defend themselves, said the justice, are entitled to receive the support of the bar against unjust criticism.

But the judges themselves, he added, should temper their criticism of other judges.

"It is no wonder the public at large comes to suspect the judicial process," said Roberts. "When some judges themselves, the very individuals who should know the most about what courts do and why they do it, wrap recent decisions with page after page, literally torn from Grimm's Fairy Tales."

Before any legal opinion can be criticized, Roberts said, one must know what the case held and what its effect on existing law will be.

Speaking of those criminals whose cases made a lot of new laws in recent years, the justice said, Clarence Gideon didn't invent robbery; Ernesto Miranda didn't discover rape, and Danny Escobedo wasn't the first to kill.

"It we crumpled the entire bill of rights into a ball and threw it in the ocean, robbery, rape and murder would still stand tall on dry land," Roberts said. "It would be justice, not crime that would drown."

Bob Watson thought safety belts were too confining.

Men's Fashion News "Versa-Twillity"

What's New for Fall?
The suits, sport coats, slacks and overcoats in the fall-winter collection of Hart Schaffner & Marx clothing shows you! It's a handpicked selection of all the newest ideas in men's clothing — styles, colors, patterns — for the new season.

Here's a sampling of what's new—the clothing you'll see pictured and described in magazines this fall. It's available at DeVivo-Quaresimo & Sons.

Charita Cloth suits, an exciting new pure wool fabric that charts new fashion directions. In four colors, each in four patterns: plaids, stripes, checks and minichecks, for a particularly individual choice.

Versa-Twill, fall's favorite fabric. See it in suits, sport coats, slacks and topcoats. The versatility of twill is handsomely evident in HS&M's Jodhpur Cloth natural shoulder Racquet Club suits.

The Astra Suit — HS&M's high fashion model. Slim, trim lines advance styled for the look of tomorrow.

The Irish County Coat, a brawny—but soft to the touch—bold plaid loomed in Ireland especially for Hart Schaffner & Marx. Typical of the fine British sport coatings in HS&M's collection from Ireland, Scotland and England.

Festive Blazers to dress you up in the holiday spirit. Eighteen vibrant colors in a distinctive basketweave blend of 50% Dacron and 50% wool that gives and springs back with every move you make for easy-wearing comfort and perfect shape retention.

For the best idea of what's new for fall, stop in and see! Try on any HS&M suits, sport coats, slacks or overcoats you like. See how they look on you!

Whatever your choice, you can be certain that the look you buy is the look you keep. Hart Schaffner & Marx's famous tailoring sees to that. Hart Schaffner & Marx clothing is available only at DeVivo-Quaresimo and Sons in Stroudsburg.

Show 'dogged' determination

Survivors fear for patients

By PETE GRADY
Pocono Record Reporter
EAST STROUDSBURG — Under sedation, usually demerol or morphine, the patient is led into an air conditioned operating room while a member or members of the immediate family wait outside hoping (and more often than not, praying) for his recovery.

After a short acting barbiturate is given intravenously, the patient is lifted gently up on to the stainless steel operating table. In the waiting room father jabs a cigarette into an ashtray and promptly lights up another one as he shakes his head and says to mother and children, already in tears, "Will you stop worrying, it's nothing serious. These operations are done every day."

Back in the operating room, a portable oxygen and anesthesia unit is wheeled up alongside the table on which the patient is resting comfortably.

As soon as the barbiturate has taken effect, metophane, a vaporized anesthetic is blown down through an endotracheal tube which was previously inserted down through the patient's larynx and into the trachea.

The patient, fully anesthetized, is now ready for surgery. Outside in the waiting room brother blows his nose and sister sobs incoherently as mother says, "Do you remember the time he was gone for three days and three nights, and when he came limping back, we gave him a warm bath and set him down in front of the fire, and how he kept carrying on because I'd forgot and put his favorite blanket in the clothes washer?"

Dad goes outdoors and looks up at the sky. "Listen," he says. "I know he's getting up there but he's still got that one good eye and the arthritis isn't that bad. Why just last week I wouldn't have got that bird if it wasn't for him. OK. So his teeth are all gone and we have to help him out at night but...well, look...the kids, can't you wait until they're at least out of grade school?"

Satisfied that nobody's looking, father wipes away a tear. After what seems to be hours the doctor comes out into the waiting room and says, "Everything's all right, you can go in and see if you want to. He's still a little wobbly."

Tears turn to laughs as the family in the operating room search helplessly for words and father finally blurts out, "I'd know you'd make it, Buster."

In real life it's Buster and Brownie and Blackie, and in Hollywood it's Lassie or Rin Tin Tin for the middle aged folk. And it's not just dogs either that come to Dr. John Tartagliano, veterinarian at the Gregory Memorial Veterinary Hospital, East Stroudsburg.

Cats, horses, parakeets, cows, goats, rabbits, pigs, birds, raccoons, does and desecrated skunks—he's treated them, too.

Dr. Tartagliano who came to Stroudsburg in 1964 as Dr. John Gregory's assistant moved to East Stroudsburg and converted his house into the Gregory Memorial Vet. Hospital in 1967. Dr. Gregory died in 1965.

Talking about pets and families who own pets, Dr. Tartagliano stated that fathers are sissies when it comes to taking a pet to the hospital.

"Men don't bring the pet in," Dr. Tartagliano said. "They leave it up to the women." Dogs can come down with cirrhosis of the liver, and it's not from drinking, Dr. Tartagliano said. Horses are prone to emphysema and cats, blood clots.

Certain breeds of dogs have their own unique types of diseases, Dr. Tartagliano said. With dashounds, its disc trouble; poodles epilepsy; boxers, tumors; german shepherds, distemper and greyhounds can't take certain

Highway open house tonight

STROUDSBURG — Pocono Mountain area residents and visitors are invited to an "Open House" today from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Pennsylvania Department of Highway's maintenance garage, Route 611, Stroudsburg.

The Open House festivities are held in conjunction with a special observance of Pennsylvania Highway Week which the Commonwealth is celebrating from Sept. 23-30 throughout the 67 county highway department offices and garages.

All visitors to the open house will be taken on a tour of the garage maintenance building and shown first hand the equipment used for maintaining the 597 miles of state highway in Monroe County and also many other services of the department.

Highway week is a national program co-sponsored in Pennsylvania by the Dept. of Highways and the Pennsylvania Highway Information Association. This year refreshments will again be served by the Pennsylvania Highway Information Assn.

William Quinn, Monroe County Dept. of Highway superintendent, said that persons who take the time to visit the department's facilities will be in for "a real surprise" when they see the enormity of the Pennsylvania Highway program and what is planned for the future.

Packagers see film on storage

MOUNT POCONO — Norbert J. DeMars, director Army Materiel Command Packing, Storage, and Transport Center at Tobyhanna Army Depot, Tuesday night showed a film report of storage of material and equipment sent from Army installations to Vietnam.

The film, plus slides, was a report on conditions and how they have changed from 1955 through 1968.

The movie and slides showed conditions for storage, packaging, unloading of ships and highways during the time DeMars made his survey of the situation in Vietnam.

The film highlighted a banquet in High Point Inn for Packaging Division of American Ordnance Association.

types of tranquilizers. Distemper, a viral infection, which affects the brain and spinal tract, is more susceptible in younger dogs. Spring is the heavy season for distemper, Dr. Tartagliano said.

He noted that some Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Shelters face a problem with distemper. Young stray dogs picked up might be given distemper shots but they don't always work if they're injected too late and the disease has a good hold on the young dog.

This reporter, who learned the hard way, agrees with Dr. Tartagliano. A few years ago in New York he got a six-week-old female beagle from the S.P.C.A. shelter in upper Eastside Manhattan.

In less than a week the beagle came down with the sniffles and diarrhea and the reporter took her back to the S.P.C.A. A doctor gave the dog a distemper shot and said she should be all right in a few days.

Forty-eight hours later, at five a.m. the reporter woke up in his apartment to a sound he had never heard before, and a sound and sight he hopes he'll never see again.

Nipping her tail and frothing at the mouth, the beagle spun around the floor with intermingling moans and growls and gnashing and chattering of teeth.

The reporter put her in a shoebox, took a taxi up to the S.P.C.A. and when the doctor came out, the reporter said, "Open up the box."

The doctor lifted the lid and shook his head. "Thanks a lot," the reporter said walking out the door and into the rain. He had named the dog, Deidre after "Deidre of the Sorrows," the title of an Irish play.

Mrs. Charles Reinhart wins 1968 Brace-for-an-Ace award

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Charles Reinhart of 111 E. Broad St., East Stroudsburg, is the 1968 Brace-for-an-Ace Award recipient from Monroe County Crippled Children and Adults Assn.

The award will be presented at the annual convention luncheon of Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Pennsylvania to be held Friday, Oct. 25, in Quality Court Motel, Scranton.

Mrs. Reinhart has been a member of the local association since 1953. During that time she has served as chairman or on the Camp Committee.

On various occasions, she personally purchased clothing for children so they could attend camp with the proper clothing. In order to aid one family, in 1967, she not only purchased the necessary items, but also sewed labels in the clothing.

She has served on various committees and each year has

Borough, township officials resigned to road fund cuts

By BOB GROFF

Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — On Tuesday night, some members of local government in Monroe County municipalities reacted mildly to the recently announced cutback in liquid fuel allocations from the county.

County Commissioners on Monday announced a two-thirds cutback in individual allocations to the 20 municipalities throughout the county.

The commissioners will use the money saved on cutbacks to begin a bridge building program involving seven steel-trussed bridges which are in need of replacement or a great deal of repair.

Here are the comments: Mayor Joseph Small, Stroudsburg — "It is something that has to be done, but it is going to hurt the street programs of not only Stroudsburg, but all the townships. I hate to see the program held up, but it is just one of those things. I don't blame them (commissioners), but I don't like to see it happen."

Borough Manager Harold Snyder, Stroudsburg — "All it means is that we will have to do less roadwork next year. The amount of street work is pretty much determined by the amount of money available. If they (commissioners) have county bridges to repair, then that is what they have to do."

Borough Council President Joe Wallace, Stroudsburg — "It's up to them. It's their money to do with as they wish. The road building program will just have to be curtailed to conform with the money available."

Borough Manager Sterling Cramer, East Stroudsburg — "I don't think it will curtail our road program. We have been averaging $25,000 a year on our program, but this year it has been closer to $40,000. What money we don't receive from the liquid fuel allocations will have to come from the general fund." East Stroudsburg's fuel allocation for 1968 was $12,000.

Mayor Gerald Possinger, Mount Pocono — "If it was only for one year, we could probably cope with it, however, if this would continue for one bridge a year for seven years, this would be a hardship. However, I do see the necessity for taking care of the bridges."

"In view of the fact that there are some counties which do not extend their liquid fuel money to their municipalities, I think the commissioners have been very fair and very generous in helping out with the money. After all, the money has to come from somewhere."

Supervisor Russell Wertheiser, Pocono Township — "We take all we can get. I think they are doing the fair thing and I'm sure they will give us as much as they can afford. It is their money."

Supervisor James Wilson, Tobyhanna Township — "It is going to hurt all the townships and it is going to hurt ours. We always figured on it (the allocation)."

Supervisor John Barlieb, Coolbaugh Township — "If appropriations are cut back, we will naturally do less road work. I feel they have a problem and by the same token it is just one of those things."

Supervisor Lawrence Getz, Park Township — "I know that these county bridges are in great need of widening and repairs and if they (commissioners) have no other method of doing this, that there is no choice. It is very hard to oppose the decision and I always like to think they use their better judgement."

"I think as far as our township roadbuilding program is concerned, we can adjust to this. We have good roads leading up to the bridges and now we need to do something about the bridges themselves."

Supervisor George M. Hallett, Stroud Township — "Let the county commissioners run the county and we'd be tickled to death to run our little old township."

Mayor Fred Decker, Delaware Water Gap — "I don't like it. I can tell you that. We have a lot of projects over here in the making and I don't know where the money is coming from. We will get hardly anything. I'm opposed to it."

P.M.'s audio department formidable

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain School District's array of Audio-Visual equipment is both formidable and impressive for a school district of its size.

It stresses quantity and quality, and like the pupils who will benefit by this versatile and highly competitive display of technological wizardry, it will flourish and grow under the guiding hand of Roy Seams, the school district's media specialist.

Currently the district houses 233 A-V machines and equipment, representing a broad spectrum of informational media. The machines and equipment have been placed in the high school and the five elementary schools.

They include two TV cameras, two video tape recorders, 14 16-mm projectors, 35-mm filmstrip projectors, 25 overhead projectors, four opaque projectors, 43 screens, four rear view screens, and 33 tape recorders.

Also, eight projector stands, three TV sets, six TV monitors, five controlled readers and two microfilm readers.

K of C picnic

STROUDSBURG — Knights of Columbus will hold a family box lunch picnic Sunday at 1 p.m. on the K of C grounds in Stroud Township.

Jury returns indictments against three in jail break

STROUDSBURG — A Monroe County Grand Jury Tuesday found "true bills" against Donald Thek, East Stroudsburg; David R. Miller, East Stroudsburg; and Audrey and Neil Cornwell, Tobyhanna, on charges of prison breach and assisting prison breach.

The charges are in connection with the jail break from the Monroe County Jail on April 17, 1968. The cases will be tried at a later date.

At the time of the escape, Thek was in jail on charges of violating parole. Miller was being held on charges of receiving stolen goods.

According to an investigation by the sheriff's office, Cornwell, who was in jail on burglary charges, passed a key to his wife, Audrey, who had another set of keys made prior to the jail break.

The grand jury also found true bills against eight other defendants and dismissed charges against four.

The eight defendants who will be tried at a later date, are Gerald Shea, 87 Sylvanus St., Wilkes-Barre; and Arnold Jerome Shea, 156 Grant St., Wilkes-Barre, both charged with burglary and larceny. Thuddaus

M. Nagie prosecuting. James Joseph Horan, Prospect St., Tobyhanna, charged with involuntary manslaughter by automobile. Charles K. Sheaman prosecuting; and John J. McLaughlin Sr., Room 45, Fenner Hotel, East Stroudsburg, charged with sodomy and corrupting the morals of a minor, Justine V.

Grand jury continues on today

STROUDSBURG — Vincent Crawn, Newton, R. D. 2, N. J., will face the Monroe County Grand Jury Wednesday on five counts of passing worthless checks.

The jury will make decisions on Crawn's case and 15 others as to whether defendants will be held for trial.

Eight cases involve charges of operating a vehicle while intoxicated. The defendants are: Edmond Drake, East Stroudsburg, R. D. 3; Michael J. Sweeney, 73 Hartley Rd., Lansdowne, and John Meister, 96 Analomink St., East Stroudsburg.

Also, Maryellen B. Hess, 161 Church St., Freeport, N. Y.; Joseph J. Miscavage, 53 Miner St., Wilkes-Barre; William J. Palmer, Stroudsburg, R. D. 2; Earl F. Kresge, Scotrun, and Deloris Kish.

Other cases to be heard today:

George Henry Stam, West Palm Beach, Fla., and Catherine Hanna, Saylorsburg, both charged with failing to stop at the scene of an accident.

Donald Smith, 105 E. Hight St., Taylor, Pa., and Curtis Michael Miller, East Stroudsburg, R. D. 2, both charged with driving under suspension.

John Galenitis, Delaware Water Gap, charged with assault and battery; Ralph Booth, 24 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, charged with arson.

Judson Green, Cresco, R. D. 1, charged with malicious mischief to personal property; and Warren F. Hoffman, Stroudsburg, charged with two counts of driving without lights to avoid identification.

Man arrested after jury frees him

STROUDSBURG — A Cherry Hill, N. J., man Tuesday was arrested for a worthless check as he walked out of the Monroe County Grand Jury room where he was released on a charge of assault and battery.

William DePietro was taken before Smithfield Township Justice of the Peace Thomas Flynn and was later released on $1,000 bail.

DePietro, according to Flynn, purchased lumber from S&S Industries, Henryville, R. D. 1, and paid for them by check. The amount was $821 and the check was returned.

John Smiley, owner of the firm and a Justice of the Peace in Pocono Township, made the charge.

DePietro had been charged by Stephen Carbonara of Cherry Hill and Henryville, with assault and battery. DePietro had cross filed the same charge against Carbonara.

The charges were made following a fight at Cherry Hill Lodge, Henryville, R. D. 1.

Cycle crashes after driver falls off

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Police investigated a motorcycle-car accident Tuesday at 6:26 p.m. on South Courtland Street. They reported no injuries and estimated total damage at $150.

Operator of the motorcycle was John Hughes, 139 Ridgeway St., East Stroudsburg, and the owner of the parked car was Charles Heller of East Stroudsburg R.D. 2.

Police said Hughes fell off the bike as he rounded a curve on S. Courtland Street. The bike continued on for about 50 feet and struck the parked car.

Charges against Hughes are pending, police said.

Monday at 4:10 p.m., police were called to the intersection of E. Brown and Prospect Streets to investigate a two-car accident.

The drivers were Richard Miller of Saylorsburg, and Russell Dennis of 1312 Dreher Ave., Stroudsburg. Neither was injured.

Miller was traveling north on Prospect Street and Dennis south on E. Brown Street when the two cars collided in the intersection.

Damages were reported by police as "slight."

Narrowsburg man dies in car crash

NARROWSBURG, N.Y. — John Doyle was killed in an auto accident at 11:45 p.m. Sunday, 15 minutes before his 30th birthday.

He was a passenger in a car driven by George Schuler, 22, of nearby Lava, police said.

Schuler was injured and was taken to Wayne County Memorial Hospital in Honesdale, Pa. His condition was listed as fair.

Police said the car went off foggy Route 52 and hit a tree.

Doyle was a resident of this community in Sullivan County on the Pennsylvania border.

S-burg booters win, 3-0; tied for third place in EP

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg High moved into a three-way tie for fourth place in the East Penn Soccer League Tuesday with a 3-0 victory over previously unbeaten Palisades.

In other league action first place Liberty was held to a 1-1 tie by Easton; winless Wilson tied Freedom, 2-2 and Hellertown outscored Southern Lehigh, 5-3.

The Mounties (1-1-3) finally showed some offense as head coach Karl Dick revised his offense by trying to get more punch and height in the halfbacks. Two new halfbacks who helped keep the pressure on were Bob Bixler (6-2) and Mike Fitzpatrick (6-1).

Dick also feels that fullbacks Corky Crane and Jim Dahner may well be the best two boys at their position in the league. Robby Baylor scored the Mounties first goal from about 23 yards out after taking a pass from Mark Williams.

Following a scoreless second period Stroudsburg beat Pirate goalie Bill Shive twice in the third period. John Appel scored from point blank on an assist from Williams while Williams scored the final goal following a perfectly placed corner kick by Phillips.

The Mounties also had two other goals nullified. Dale Marsh had one call back because of an offside while Williams scored a penalty kick but it came before the whistle blew.

Mountie goalie Bill Weber made 11 saves, several of them diving stops, while Shive stopped 15 in the nets for the Pirates.

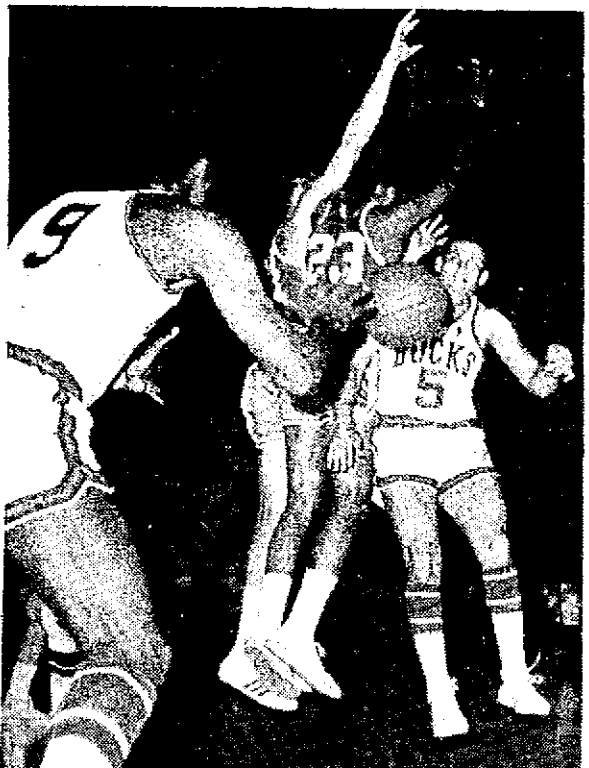

Senators crush Bosox

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ken McMullen collected three singles and scored four runs and Brant Alvey chipped in with a double and triple and drove in two runs Tuesday night as the Washington Senators routed the Boston Red Sox 10-2.

The victory went to Frank Bertina, 7-13, who allowed four hits in seven innings while Dennis Higgins finished up. Jim Lonborg, 6-9, went 5 1-3 innings and was charged with six runs while taking the loss.

Lonborg walked the leadoff batter, Alvey, in the sixth and McMullen and Bernie Allen followed with singles to bring on Bill Landis, who struck out a batter but then walked two more to force in a run. Del Unser then singled in two runs to knock out Landis and complete the four-run inning.

Carl Yastrzemski homered in the eighth inning off Higgins for the first Red Sox run. It was his 22nd homer of the year.

Yankees, Indians split

NEW YORK (UPI)—Max Alvis drove in two runs and Lou Johnson scored two as the Cleveland Indians defeated the New York Yankees 5-2 Tuesday night after Mel Stottlemyre won his 21st game of the season in the Yankees' 5-1 opening-game victory.

The Indians took the lead in the second on a triple by Johnson and Alvis' single and picked up two more in the fifth on Johnson's double, Alvis' triple and Larry Brown's sacrifice fly.

They scored single markers in the eighth and ninth. In the eighth, Jose Cardenal tripled and came all the way home on Rocky Colavito's throwing error.

Stottlemyre pitched a four-hitter in the first game to end a six-game losing streak. Rookie catcher Frank Fernandez' two-run homer in the second inning sent the Yankees off in front and Stottlemyre singled in an unearned run in the seventh.

Bill Forte 1st grid winner

STROUDSBURG — Bill Forte, 722 Thomas St., Stroudsburg, took first place in last Saturday's first football contest. Forte only missed on one tie game.

Scott Krauss, 508 South 5th St., Bangor, and Jake Nittel, 84 North Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, came in second and third. They each missed out on the tie game and each had one wrong pick.

Scott Krauss picked 52 as top score and Jake Nittel 57. The high score was 64 therefore Scott took second place. The incorrect Alabama game did not count in the scoring.

NHL sets May 13 as final date

TORONTO (UPI)—National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell said Tuesday this year's Stanley Cup playoffs will end no later than May 13, even if both sets of the semi-finals and final series go the full length.

Campbell, attending an NHL Board of Governors meeting at the Royal York Hotel, said teams in the playoffs will play back-to-back games in one city and then travel to the other for another two-day set of encounters.

Previously, at least one day was allowed between games in each city.

Campbell noted the new plan will eliminate overnight travel between games.

PGA obtains temporary restriction

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — The Professional Golfers Association obtained a temporary restraining order in U.S. District Court here late Tuesday to balk the independence plans of the rebel American Professional Golfers organization.

Chief Judge Caleb M. Wright issued the order which temporarily blocks the fledgling APG from:

—Employing documents, mailing lists and confidential information transferred from the PGA to the APG by a former PGA employee;

—Entering into any agreement with a sponsor of a 1968 PGA golf tournament;

—Soliciting any prospective tournament player to participate in or conduct a 1968 qualifying school.

The judge said the APG has 10 days in which to reply to his order.

The APG was formed in August by a group of dissident professionals headed by most of the PGA tour's biggest money winners. Grievances included demands for a greater voice in handling affairs, money and partial elimination of qualifying tournament.

Blass blanks Reds, 2-0, for 18th

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Steve Blass pitched a six-hitter to collect his 18th victory and Willie Stargell cracked a seventh-inning homer Tuesday night as the Pittsburgh Pirates blanked the Cincinnati Reds 2-0.

Gary Nolan went seven innings for the Reds and allowed five hits including Stargell's homer as his seven-game winning streak was snapped. Nolan is now 9-3.

The Pirates added their other run in the eighth when Matty Alou doubled to score Maury Wills, who reached first on an infield single off reliever Bill Kelso.

Phils top Cardinals in ninth

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Gary Sutherland singled with two out in the ninth inning to drive in John Briggs with the tie-breaking run and give the Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 triumph over Ray Washburn and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Briggs singled with two out in the ninth, stole second and went to third on Tim McCarver's throwing error. Washburn intentionally walked Bill White but then Sutherland lashed a slow curve into center field to drive in the winning run.

The Cardinals tied the score in the fifth inning when Julian Javier doubled and Dal Maxvill singled after the Phillies took the lead in the second on a walk to Roberto Pena, Tony Gonzalez' single and an infield out by Richie Allen.

Washburn, who pocketed $3,000 earlier Tuesday as a bonus for his no-hit game against the San Francisco Giants last week, allowed five hits and struck out seven in losing his eighth game against 13 wins.

Mollenkopf paints bleak picture

CHICAGO (UPI)—Jack Mollenkopf painted a bleak picture Tuesday for his No. 2 ranked Purdue Boilermakers, who must play top rated Notre Dame Saturday.

"I don't think there's another college football team in the nation who can match them on offense," Mollenkopf said on the telephone to the weekly football writers meeting.

"Their offensive line is blocking better than it was a year ago. They look more polished and I'm sure they are. Last week they ran out of 24 different offensive sets, and they can do anything out of them. So they were doing what they do best. It's difficult for college kids to recognize these things."

Mollenkopf, whose own team was a pre-season favorite for the national title, could find some bright spots for Purdue, but most of his talk was devoted to the Fighting Irish.

"They're defense is bigger than ours," he said, "and I know we're meeting a much stronger team than we did last year," when Purdue won 28-21.

"No team has got as large a number of outstanding players as they have. They say their defense may be a little bit bad, but we didn't have a chance to scout it, because they didn't have to use it much."

Mollenkopf said he would use his backfield star, Leroy Keyes, on defense when needed, and anticipated he would rely on him as well for his usual running, passing, and place kicking.

"I doubt if we can cover their pass receivers one on one," he said, "but I hope that Leroy can give it a fair shot. I don't think he can shut off (Jim) Seymour, but if Leroy can't, what are we going to do with the others in there?"

"We're going to do the best we can to prepare to defend against all the Notre Dame strengths."

Keyes, he said, would be the key as usual, but he didn't expect him to go 60 minutes.

"If he doesn't get the Heisman trophy, they ought to blow it up, if he goes all the way against Notre Dame," Mollenkopf said.

Irish coach Ara Parseghian declared Keyes was "one of the most versatile players in the country," and said he had some fears himself about Purdue.

"They're a gifted ball club," he said, "with Keyes, (Perry) Williams, (Mike) Phipps, and others. I don't think we can overdefend them."

Notre Dame installed 6-point favorite to whip Purdue

NEW YORK (UPI)—Notre Dame was installed a six-point favorite over Purdue Tuesday for the Saturday clash between the nation's two top-ranked college football teams.

Southern California, the No. 3 team, was expected to have things easier against Northwestern and odds-makers made the Trojans a 17-point choice. Penn State, ranked fourth, was a big 23-point pick over Kansas State.

No odds were quoted on the game between fifth ranked UCI-A and Washington State.

Sixth-ranked Kansas rated a six-point edge over Indiana, the same margin given ninth-ranked Louisiana State over Rice. But eighth-ranked Nebraska was a two-point underdog to Minnesota. Miami of Florida, ranked 10th, was seven over Georgia Tech and Florida State was given only a one-point edge in its traditional battle with Army.

Army was 10 over Vanderbilt, Syracuse 13 over Maryland, Ohio State 12 over Southern Methodist, Michigan State 10 over Baylor, Navy seven over Boston College, Michigan two over Duke, Oklahoma seven over North Carolina State, Wyoming seven over Air Force, Stanford seven over Oregon, Texas eight over Texas Tech, Texas A&M 14 over Tulane and Mississippi 10 over Kentucky.

In other games, Georgia was 10 over Clemson, Auburn 13 over Mississippi State, Harvard two over Holy Cross, California four over Colorado, Texas Christian four over Iowa, Washington seven over Wisconsin, Missouri five over Illinois, Cornell seven over Colgate, West Virginia five over Pittsburgh, Virginia 13 over VMI, Virginia Tech six over William and Mary and South Carolina six over North Carolina.

In a pro football game Saturday night, Kansas City is a 17-point pick over the Miami Dolphins.

Sunday NFL games find Green Bay eight over Detroit, Baltimore 14 over Pittsburgh, Dallas 14 over Philadelphia, Los Angeles seven over Cleveland, the New York Giants four over Washington, Minnesota seven over Chicago, St. Louis four over New Orleans, and San Francisco 14 over Atlanta.

In the AFL Sunday, the New York Jets are picked by 17 over Buffalo, San Diego is 10 over Cincinnati, Boston is three over Denver and Oakland is rated eight over Houston.

Kurtenbach out for two games

NEW YORK (UPI)—Injured center Orlando Kurtenbach of the New York Rangers is expected to miss the club's two pre-season games in New York this weekend, the Rangers announced Tuesday.

Kurtenbach was found to be suffering from strained back muscles when examined by Ranger doctors in New York. He then returned to the club training camp in Kitchener, Ont.

Woodeschick NFL's top running back

NEW YORK (UPI)—The calamity that befell Sam Baker Sunday may be an indication of the kicking specialists' slide down the scoring ladder at this early stage of the National Football League season.

Baker, Philadelphia's conversion artist, had three attempts blocked by New York, an almost unheard of occurrence in this day of automatic placements in the NFL.

The seven leading scorers in the NFL after Sunday's games list only Pete Gogolak of the Giants carrying the heroic burden of the talented totem. He is fourth with 24 points. Bill Brown of Minnesota leads with 30 and a second place tie at 24 exists between Pat Richter of Washington and Dan Reeves of Dallas.

The top three scoring leaders at the end of the NFL season booted their way to the top with Jim Bakken of St. Louis first with 117 points. Bruce Gossett of Los Angeles followed with 108 and Lou Michaels of Baltimore scored 106.

Tom Woodeschick, the Eagles' workhorse, bruised New York defenses for 129 yards and took over the rushing lead with 177. Leroy Kelly of Cleveland, last week's leader and 1967 titlist, is second with 165 yards.

Two all-conference seniors of Purdue University will be the co-captains when Purdue Boilermakers meet the Fighting Irish Saturday at South Bend. They are fullback Perry Williams (l), and middle guard Chuck Kyle (r). They are shown going over Notre Dame plays with Coach Jack Mollenkopf as it poured rain during practice Tuesday.

Injuries hit defensive tackles

Packers not taking Lions lightly

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI)—One thing is sure this time around. The Green Bay Packers won't be taking the Detroit Lions lightly.

A year ago, the Packers, favored for a third successive National Football League crown, faced the Lions, favored to go absolutely nowhere, in the opening game of the year.

Green Bay escaped — just barely — with a 17-1 tie.

Sunday, the two teams meet again at Lambeau Field—the Lions after trouncing the Bears 42-0 Sunday and the Packers after a 28-13 loss to Minnesota.

"These Lions are hot now," said Green Bay Coach Phil Bengtson. "We sure have a hot team ahead of us."

The return of Bill Munson, who sat out the Detroit opener because of injury, and the play of the Lions' defensive secondary made the difference between last Sunday and one week before when Dallas beat the Michigan team 59-13.

Munson threw for three touchdowns and scored another against Chicago. The defensive backs picked off eight interceptions.

"All those interceptions give a team a tremendous shot in the arm," said Bengtson. "Everybody on your side starts playing better. It's catching."

Bengtson spent Monday looking at films of the loss to Minnesota and Detroit's victory over Chicago and Tuesday he had his team back on the practice field.

The only injury seemed to be a twisted knee suffered by defensive lineman Ron Kostelnik.

That just compounded Green Bay's problems at that position, though rookie Leon Crenshaw, who replaced Kostelnik, did a very creditable job against Minnesota.

It was the second injury this year for Kostelnik. Defensive tackle Henry Jordan has also missed some playing time because of chronic back trouble and two other veteran defensive linemen—Jim Weatherwax and Rob Brown—are both off the roster on the injured list.

Brown is eligible to come back on and Bengtson said he would get a ruling "in the next day or two" from team physician Dr. James Nellen about when he could be restored to active status.

Weatherwax, who underwent knee surgery a few days ago, will be out for several weeks.

The injury string is similar to one that struck at a different position—the offensive backfield—a year ago.

The 1967 Packers were healthy season long except for the backfield where quarterbacks Bart Starr and Zeke Bratkowski and running backs Elijah Pitts, Donny Anderson and Ben Wilson were lost for extended periods.

Phillips helps Jenkins gain 19th victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — Adolfo Phillips hit his 12th homer and scored another run Tuesday to help Ferguson Jenkins to his 19th triumph as the Chicago Cubs edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2.

Phillips doubled in the third and scored on Jose Arcia's single and homered in the fifth. The Cubs scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth on back-to-back doubles by Billy Williams and Ernie Banks. All of the Cubs' runs came off losing pitcher Allan Foster, who was relieved by Jim Grant with two outs in the sixth.

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals say they are doing everything they can to make World Series tickets available to the average baseball fan.

Nevertheless, ticket supervisor Mike Bertani said Tuesday, only 5,000 to 7,500 of the 51,000 seats in Busch Stadium will be filled by the lucky fans whose mail order requests were pulled out of about 90 stuffed mailbags.

The only other alternative for most Cardinal rooters will be to stand in line for 4,000 bleacher seats and 3,100 standing room tickets available for each game.

The Cardinals said after clinching the National League pennant that they would sell to one applicant tickets for just two of the four World Series games that conceivably will be played in St. Louis—thereby making twice as many tickets available by mail as last year.

In 1967, blocks of tickets were sold for all three games in St. Louis.

Bertani said, "when you add in all the people we know have supported the club—the season ticket holders, the credit card customers, the partial season ticket holders—you find that more than 60 per cent of the available tickets are going to the general public."

Washburn gets new contract

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—No-hit pitcher Ray Washburn, the season still on the National League pennant clinched by the St. Louis Cardinals, tore up his old contract Tuesday and signed a new one for the season about to end.

The 30-year-old Washburn, who had been earning between $25,000 and $30,000 was given a $3,000 "bonus" under the new contract, and the indications were that the right-hander would get another increase by the time he signs a contract for next season.

Washburn appeared in the office of General Manager Bing Devine in answer to a telephone call Devine had made to Washburn the night he turned in the no-hitter against the San Francisco Giants, 24-hours after Giant pitcher Gaylord Perry had pitched a no-hit game against the Cardinals.

Washburn with a 13-7 season record was due to pitch Tuesday night against the Philadelphia Phillies, in the first home game since the Cardinal road trip.

Against the Phillies, Washburn has had much luck. Washburn has a 5-1 record against the Phillies including a 3-1 decision this season.

Ted's Tidbits

By TED WISNER Sports Editor

West Chester is still loaded and on paper it's hard to see why the Rams were rated second behind East Stroudsburg State.

That's the opinion of Charlie Reese as he prepares his Warriors for Saturday night's clash in West Chester that will decide (barring any upsets) the Eastern Division champion in the Pennsylvania State College Conference.

All the Rams have back are their entire offensive line; all lettermen in the defensive line and two of the finest backs in the conference including All-American Bert Nye, who led the nation in scoring last year beating out the likes of O. J. Simpson of Southern California and Lekoy Keys of Purdue.

West Chester has a pair of all-conference guards back, two offensive tackles that go 235 and 240 respectively; two outstanding ends and a sophomore center who beat out Ron Kale, an all-conference pick last year.

The Rams also have an outstanding sophomore quarterback in Dick Dilts (the Warriors tried to recruit him two years ago). Following the win over Ithaca Saturday, the Ithaca coaching staff reportedly made the statement that Dilts may develop into a better quarterback than the departed Jim Haynie.

While the defensive line is all lettermen, Reese quickly pointed out that most of last year's starters are gone. With West Chester winning most of its games by a 30-point margin, the Rams' staff was able to get a lot of boys into almost every game.

The linebackers are a pair of transfers and both are big enough to play in the pros. One is a 6-2, 225 boy from Duke and the other is a 6-2, 220-pounder from Shippensburg.

Reese did note that Ithaca did hit on 19 of 26 passes which could be a good sign for the Warriors' Billy Dukett.

"I think it's the biggest West Chester team I've ever seen and those in the West Chester area are also calling it one of the quickest in recent years. So as you can see, we have a very formidable challenge waiting us," Reese said.

Switch Morgan

In an attempt to combat the Rams' strong rush, Reese has moved 220-pound senior Denny Morgan into a guard slot in place of the injured Joe Kelly (180). The move was made possible with the return to action of 220-pound junior Hank Kearns, who missed the Edinboro game with a badly sprained thumb.

The only other change may find Bill Hurst, who also missed the opener, replacing Ralph Gish at a halfback spot.

In addition, to Kelly being doubtful, two defensive tackles, Carl Wolfe and Chuck Keinath remain questionable performers. Both have leg troubles.

Reese feels it's almost impossible to outsmart opposing coaches with the so-called trick plays. "The only way we're going to win is out-hit, out-tackle, out-block, and of course, out-score them," Reese said.

Reese plans to work on timing this week because of the mixup in last week's Penn scrimmage. One thing the Warriors haven't done and won't do the rest of the season is knock heads and risk injuries. As Reese put it, "We're going to wait to the day of the game and then turn them loose."

This is to be the last home game on the present West Chester field and ESSC hopes to spoil the finale.

Ustinov: 'what'll he try next'

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Peter Ustinov is a Walter Mitty with the knack of making his wildest daydreams come true. "What'll he try next?" is the question perennially asked about this seriocomic genius who is acclaimed as "the Renaissance man of the theater."

As usual he is trying to do more than one thing at a time. Having completed his 25th film, "Hot Millions," in which he plays an eccentric embezzler, Peter is putting the finishing touches on his 26th play, "The Passion According to Pontius Pilate," in which Jesus returns in modern dress.

"I really enjoy doing nothing best," he said. "Just thinking what I might do next is a marvelous feeling."

There is little in the entertainment world that Ustinov hasn't done. The plump 47-year-old performer, who has shaved off his trademark beard, began as a cabaret performer in his native London at 18. He has won two Hollywood Oscars and two television Emmys for his acting, directed six movies, five of which he also produced. He has written novels and travel articles and even wielded the baton over the orchestra that provided music for his latest films.

What kind of a man is Peter? He's a human chameleon. His mind skips between Puck and Plato, his moods range from the belly laugh to the dry inner tear, voiced but unshed. His royal sword is the cap and bells. He is a kind of court jester at the throne of mankind.

The five bloods that flow through his veins—Russian, French, Jewish, Ethiopian and Italian—blend in a torrent that cries out his one big message: a plea for more tolerance.

"Tolerance isn't a sign of weakness—it's one of strength," he remarked, attacking a luncheon plate of corned beef and cabbage with the relish he brings to all his endeavors. "Life to me is an adventure during which one learns the meaning of tolerance. It is a phase in some greater education. One learns not only by obedience, but by quarrel, by revolution as well as acceptance."

Ustinov believes a cramping conformity is destroying wonder and inquisitiveness in modern life.

"To me the individual is sacrosanct," he said. "The enemy is the computer."

"This is the era of the specialist at the expense of everything else. If children start specializing at the age of 8, then we'll deserve whatever happens to us."

"I'm afraid that, despite all our talk about them, liberty and freedom are being lost minute by minute and that the possibilities of them are getting smaller and smaller."

Here are things Peter likes: "The sea—people solitude—vineyards—Mark Twain—contemporary classical music—Turkish foods, you can eat a lot of them without gaining weight—beer and wine drunk where they are grown—just before twilight, when the earth smells best to me—the sounds of a bassoon, the nostalgic whirring of a distant lawnmower on a summer day, the straining hawsers of a boat in harbor—the feel of cashmere—and doubt, because it is the most important ingredient in life."

These are his dislikes: "Political double talk—organic foods, such as brains, liver, kidneys—root beer—the barking of strange dogs—airplane pilots who mumble their announcements—the odor of sanctity—and people who accept the world that they are given instead of trying to create their own world inside it."

John G. Gelinas

Ex-resident will head Nixon group

WASHINGTON, D.C. — John G. Gelinas of 82 Johnson Road, Stroudsburg, New York, has been appointed coordinator of Volunteers for NIXON-AGNEW in Westchester County. The announcement was made today in Washington, D.C., by J. J. Wuerthner, Jr., Director of this division of United Citizens for Nixon-Agnew which seeks five million volunteers.

Gelinas, former Stroudsburg resident, is assistant to the president and director of corporate relations of National Union Electric Corporation. Mr. Gelinas was vice president, Thomas J. Deegan Company, Inc., a public relations firm in New York City.

He is chairman of the public relations committee of the Greater New York Council Boy Scouts of America, and an alumni association vice president of Boston University.

Mr. Gelinas began his career as a member of the staff of the late Robert R. Young of the New York Central Railroad, and he was named recipient of the Robert R. Young Award, the "first internship in corporate public relations" at Boston University during Mr. Gelinas' graduate year in 1954.

In 1955, Mr. Gelinas joined the public relations department of Mobil Oil Corporation, New York City.

Close to heaven

Nepal world's last 'never-never land'

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Now that Shangri-la has vanished with Tibet behind the Bamboo Curtain, neighboring Nepal has got to be the world's last remaining never-never land.

Topographically, at any rate, no place else on earth is closer to heaven. In the northeast corner of this tiny kingdom of Sherpas and Gurkhas, mighty Sagarmatha—Mount Everest, the world's highest mountain—raises her snow-covered head 29,028 feet into the clouds. Ninety sister peaks tower to 22,000 feet and more.

Cut off from the world until 1954 when the road to India was opened, Nepal still clings more to the sky above than the earth below: a land of enchantment suspended in a supernatural vision between the lofty Himalayan range and lowland plains of malaria-ridden jungle still haunted by elephants, tigers and wild buffalo.

Magicians, fortune tellers, Hindu holy men wander through the quaint medieval streets of Katmandu, the capital city. In the market place, near the ferocious leering figure of Kal Bhairab, the God of Terror, a Muslim string and flute orchestra beats out the tempo for a chorus of robed seers eerily keeping a passage from the Koran. Under the all-seeing eye of Lord Buddha, peering down from a magnificent stone stupa, a Tibetan Lama squats on straw mat whirling his prayer wheel in endless clockwise devotion.

It is anywhere in Nepal, and everywhere in the kingdom the gods are being cajoled and assuaged. Funeral pyres of scented rosewood are burning on rafts in the sacred Bagmati River, where wailing Hindu parents are cremating their infant offspring who failed to survive the monsoon plagues. Further upstream, beneath the porticos of a magnificently goldleafed temple, goats and lambs are being slaughtered with a single stroke of the khukuri, the curved knife of the Gurkhas, and already the waters are crimson with sacrificial blood and the banks reek with the stench of discarded entrails. Pilgrims by the thousands push and shove to place a joss stick on the altar of a minor deity who on other days of the year would be overlooked.

Bearded siks in jeweled turbans mingle in the crowded bazaars with bead-and-flower-decked hippies from foreign lands. Sacred cows sleep undisturbed in the middle of the road, oblivious of the claxon horns of the rickshaw boys, and a priest-hood of monkeys presides over a Tibetan pagoda, where handsome, high cheekboned Mongol women with dark braided hair and enormous rings in their earlobes pray the day away in sing-song chant.

This is Nepal, a lovely land with one eye constantly fixed on heaven and the other warily divided between anxious glances at China and India, her two formidable neighbors.

Although the kingdom of Nepal has been open to the Western world a little over a decade, the Chinese have had some sort of diplomatic representation here since 646 A.D. Once Nepalese trade loomed so important with the great country beyond the wall of the Himalayas that a Nepalese arrested in Tibet could only be tried by a special three-man court, two of whom had to be from Nepal.

Then when Tibet fell in the 1950's, Red Chinese maps began to claim Nepal, Bhutan, Sikkim and East Kashmir as Chinese territory.

Along with the military menace of Red China, Nepal worries about being economically and culturally engulfed by India, with whom she has been closely bound since emerging as a nation from her mountain fastness. Ninety per cent of all Nepal's trade is with India, which leads even the United States in foreign aid to Nepal, along with exporting her form of government, her trade and customs and, as one Nepalese put it, "some of the world's worst movies." To keep one tiny step ahead of India, Nepal sets its clocks 10 minutes ahead of Indian time.

The Chinese have built the Kodari Highway to Tibet, the finest road in the country. They also have built a shoe factory and a tile factory and flooded the country with photographs of Mao and endless Chinese propaganda. Russia, Great Britain, the United States also have poured aid into Nepal, but, over-all, her ways are more and more becoming India's ways.

Only 500 miles across by 50 miles long, roughly the size and shape of North Carolina, Nepal's 10 million people are a conglomeration of many diverse tribes and peoples: Newars, Sherpas, Magars, Tamangs, Muslims, Gurkhas, Brahmins, Saturs Kshetriyas all living under a many-tiered democratic monarchy called the Panchayat system.

The complexity becomes a bizarre land that until 1959 was ruled by a series of hereditary prime ministers, most of whom seem to have inherited the job by disposing of their uncle.

Nepal's most renowned export is still people: the fierce Gurkhas, among the world's finest soldiers. Today there are 12,000 Gurkhas serving in the Indian army and 8,000 in the British army.

Mexican shoots into three more schools

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Unidentified gunmen shot up three more schools recently, a few hours after the rector of the University of Mexico resigned in the wake of two months of student strikes and violence. Students were reported wounded and kidnapped during the early morning attacks.

And, shortly before noon, 800 riot police surrounded La Ciudadela, site of a vocational school that since rioting started July 26 has been an assembly point for students bent on raising trouble. A newsman on the scene said students were gathering but that there were many more police than students.

The school at La Ciudadela, Vocational No. 5, was one of the ones shot at during the night by individuals who arrived in cars, opened fire and fled. Another school was Preparatory No. 9 near Insurgentes Avenue, main route from downtown to the Olympic Stadium where the 1968 Olympic Games will be opened Oct. 12.

About 30 shots were fired at Preparatory School No. 5 in the Coapa area near the Olympic Village and the university campus. The campus and Olympic Stadium have been occupied by troops since last Wednesday night. Students still at the three schools said several of their number had been wounded and others kidnapped by the vigilante groups which, since violence started, have staged similar raids on three other occasions.

University rector Javier Barros Sierra, who took office 2½ years ago, replacing a rector who also had been plagued by a two-month student strike, gave what he termed his "irrevocable" resignation to the University Council Sunday night in protest of the government's decision to send troops onto his campus.

Considering co-education

EASTON - "Coeducation - Is it for Lafayette?" that's the theme for more than 30 Lafayette alumni meetings throughout the United States during the next nine months.

The first meeting in the series will be sponsored by the Easton Area Alumni Assn. Friday. The dinner meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at "The Firehouse" on Route 115.

Dr. William W. Watt, Francis A. March, Professor and head of the department of English, and Dr. Charles C. Cole, Jr., provost and dean at Lafayette, will be the panelists from the college at the Easton meeting.

William E. Greenup, Lafayette's alumni secretary, will be the moderator.

District alumni clubs will host panel discussions on the subject that has been under consideration on the all-male Lafayette campus for more than a year.

Last spring Lafayette's faculty recommended to the Board of Trustees that "the admission of women to all degree programs be authorized as soon as practicable."

The recommendation is now under study by a Board committee.

Greenup, who organized the series of meetings, has said that the presentations will not be attempts to "sell" coeducation to the alumni. "These meetings are intended to provide alumni with information on coeducation and to get alumni reaction and comment," he said.

A panel of at least two people - faculty, students or administrators of the college - will attend each of the meetings. In addition to the exchange of ideas at the meetings, Greenup said he hoped to get written responses from alumni. "Alumni opinion will certainly be considered in any decision by the trustees," he noted.
